WALL ST. CLOSE

Today

Fantastic, Fickle, Fierce. England Goes Borrowing. A New Speakeasy Plan. Before She Jumped.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

"Fantastic, fickle, fierce and vain!
Vein as the leaf upon the stream,
And fickle as a changeful dream."

THAT'S WALL Street.

Last week, everybody down there was happy, prices were going up and 53 branch offices closed by brokers within a month, were expected soon to reopen.

THIS WEEK STARTS, with hope and mirth all gone, stocks were going down, and money, "on call" lent in abundance at one per cent, discouraging for banks that like to earn 100 per cent and more a year. You can't grow fat on one per cent.

UNCLE SAM IS BACK in the wheat pit, buying to keep up the price, and discovering that even Uncle Sam's pocket is hardly deep enough for that, especially when plans are made public.

THE BANK OF ENGLAND, fearful of too great a drop in England's gold reserve, seeks from France a loan of one billion dollars.

Friends of France will be delighted to hear that the great republic is in a position to lend so much and the French financial situation may discourage those that are urging Uncle Sam to wipe out the debt owed by France, on the ground that France can't afford to pay.

IN THAT CONNECTION, one fact, stated clearly by President Hoover, should not be forgotten, namely, that the United States has already forgiven every dollar of the French debt contracted during the war.

The only sums that are to be paid are debts contracted after the war. President Hoover made this statement publicly, and was surprised, perhaps, to find that not a newspaper in France printed it.

THE BRITISH, that financed France and other allies while the war was on, and had always looked upon Continental nations as "small pocketbook countries," must rub their eyes when they find themselves borrowing a billion dollars from the French.

PROHIBITION DEVELOPS strange features.

Many educators object to prohibition on the ground that instead of stopping the use of alcohol, it has taught children to drink whisky.

One of the most important colleges is discussing, within the faculty, a college speakeasy and official bootlegger, to be recognized unofficially with the understanding that he will sell only beer properly made. The plan is to save students from the deadly bootleg whisky, gin and other poisonous concoctions.

THE MINDS OF MEN and women work strangely in emergencies.

One lady, when her house caught fire, locked her jewelry and best clothes in a closet, put the key in her pocket and ran out of the house, which burned down.

Yesterday, a woman about 60 decided to commit suicide in New York and did. You would never have heard of her, suicides being common, except for certain details. Before she jumped 75 feet, to her death, from the viaduct at Riverside drive and One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street, the lady took off her coat, took off her hat, took off her white gloves, took out her false teeth, put them in her handbag, arranged all this property neatly in a pile, and then jumped.

THERE IS RIOTING in Barcelona, the old song "Weep, Weep, Catalonia," is still sung in Spain.

Rioting in Havana, rioting in Madrid, a bomb blows up a soldiers' barracks in the Irish Free State, kidnaping and murdering continue in China.

Men are still settling their problems as they did a hundred thousand years ago, by killing those with whom they disagree.

LOUIS SHERWIN, WRITING for Cyrus H. K. Curtis, recalls that nearly 80 years ago, in 1851, San Francisco, facing a similar crime problem, knew how to deal with it. A citizens' committee of 7,000 hanged four men and expelled 30 from the city. Thereupon 800 of the lawless element left of their own accord, convinced that San Francisco climate was bad for their health. But today's criminals are of sterner breed, perhaps, and in New York it is alleged that some of them have for partners magistrates and other officials.

New Company Seeking Line Here Pledges to Spend $177,000,000 on Work

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Appealing for permission to spend $177,000,000 on a new railroad across Pennsylvania, construction of which would give direct employment to 10,000 men and indirect employment to 10,000 additional men in mills and factories, H. T. Newcomb, attorney for the New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago Railroad Company presented final arguments to the Interstate Commerce Commission today.

CUTS 75 MILES

Newcomb, who was assisted in the case by Henry Oliver Evans, Pittsburgh attorney, declared the proposed New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago line would extend from Etna, Pa., to Easton, Pa., a distance of 283 miles.

Using eastern connections with either the Central Railroad of New Jersey, or the Lehigh Valley he asserted that shippers in the Pittsburgh district would be brought 75 miles nearer New York.

More important than this, however, he insisted was the fact that the new line would have no grade of more than 16 feet to the mile and a summit level of 1,560 feet. The best existing lines must overcome grades of 65 feet to the mile and the largest volume of traffic must be hauled over a summit of 2,160 feet.

CHEAP OPERATING COSTS

Newcomb presented statistic showing that a single locomotive will haul heavier trains over the proposed line than can now be hauled over the Pennsylvania Railroad between Pittsburgh and Altoona by four locomotives of the same size. This would make un-

STATE TO LOSE 2 HOUSE SEATS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The long-awaited conclusions of the Census Bureau on how represetation in the House should be reapportioned among the states, announced today by President Hoover, showed loss of two seats by Pennsylvania and gains of nine seats for California, four for Michigan and three for Texas.

The report will be transmitted to Congress at the December session. It was based on a population of 122,093,455. The House membership of 435 will not be changed.

Missouri stands to lose three seats, and Georgia, Iowa and Kentucky each two.

New Jersey, New York and Ohio each gain two; while Connecticut, Florida, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Washington add one representative apiece.

The following states lose one seat each: Alabama, Indiana, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia and Wisconsin.

LEVINE REMAINS IN VIENNA JAIL

VIENNA, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Vigorously denying the charges against him, Charles A. Levine, wealthy New York aviation enthusiast, was arraigned before the Police Security Bureau here today on suspicion of being connected with a Vienna engraver in counterfeiting French coins.

Levine told the police that the charges against him were utterly ridiculous, adding:

"With my fortune, I would be crazy to counterfeit coins."

After explaining he had ordered a number of coins struck off by the engraver "for advertising purposes," Levine was remanded to jail pending further inquiries. Levine, who flew across the Atlantic in 1927 with Clarence Chamberlin, declared that the whole affair was due to a misunderstanding, and blamed his difficulties on his faulty use of the German language, as a result of which the engraver misinterpreted the purpose of his order.

Levine was arrested on the railway station platform in the presence of Miss Mabel Boll, so-called "Queen of Diamonds," while they were en route to Vienna.

Congressman, 70, to Wed Former Head Waitress

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The romance of a member of Congress and a former head waitress in the hotel at which he lived materialized today in the announcement of the engagement of Representative Timberlake, of Colorado, and Mrs. Roberta Wood Elliott, a widow, of Salisbury, N. C.

The wedding will take place here December 23.

Mr. Timberlake is in his seventies. The bride-to-be's age was given in the early thirties. Timberlake has been married twice, and Mrs. Elliott was married once, her husband dying about a year ago. Mr. Timberlake's second wife also died about a year ago.

The representative met Mrs. Elliott when she was head waitress at George Washington Inn.

She has a young daughter. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Wood, of Salisbury.

TAX PROTESTS CARRIED TO MAYOR

Kline Orders Time Limit for Appeals Extended 3 Days; 2,500 Attend Meetings

Wide indignation over increased property valuation resolved itself into concerted protests from irate taxpayers today following four mass meetings attended by more than 2,500 property owners last night.

New developments in the taxpayers fight today were these:

1.—Mayor Kline, yielding to demand that time be extended for filing appeals, today said the assessor's office would be kept open until 9 each night this week except Saturday, when it will close at 5 p. m. This is an extension of three days.

2—Lawyers and notaries in Lincoln avenue district, Overbrook and Mt. Washington offer services to taxpayers wishing to file appeals.

3—1930 assessments branded excessive, unjust and amounting in some instances to confiscation in resolutions adopted at Nineteenth Ward meeting sponsored by Washington Heights Board of Trade.

4—Thomas C. McMahon, chief city assessor, heckled at protest meeting in Overbrook Municipal Building while attempting to explain assessments.

5—Resolutions urging revision and calling attention to alleged oppressively high valuations upon property owners adopted at Overbrook Board of Trade meeting.

TIME LIMIT EXTENDED

The decision to increase the time for filing appeals on city tax assessments was announced by Chief City Assessor Thomas C. McMahon when interviewed by a delegation from the Mt. Washington Board of Trade. R. J. Macrory, acting as spokesmen for the Mt. Washington group, asked for the extension of time.

Mr. McMahon granted the extension and said that Mayor Kline had requested the Board of Assessors to give all citizens every opportunity to be heard. The Mt. Washington delegation did not appeal to the mayor personally.

Belasco Stricken With Pneumonia

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—David Belasco, noted theatrical producer, was somewhat improved today from an attack of pneumonia, and it was believed that his illness was not as critical as first reported. His physician, Dr. Jerome B. Wagner, denied reports that the condition of the producer was "extremely critical."

Mr. Belasco was taken ill while in Baltimore, but refused to consider his illness of serious nature until he arrived here yesterday.

Hoover Buys Tickets To Job-Aid Benefit

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—For the sake of the unemployed, President Hoover is buying something he won't use. He has ordered tickets for the Army-Navy football game to be played for charity in New York, December 13. Since he has accepted an invitation to the Washington correspondents' annual Gridiron Club dinner that night, he will be unable to attend the game.

PAIR SEIZED IN RAIDS HELD BY ROTHENBERG

Magistrate Fails to Demand Complainants' Presence, As He Said He Would

Making no move to enforce his ultimatum of yesterday, in which he ruled that defendants in raid cases be faced by their complainants, Magistrate Leo Rothenberg today held two alleged violators of the Snyder Act for court in Central Police Court.

When counsel for Harry Jacobs, 45, alleged proprietor of a raided confectionery at 59 Logan street, asked Rothenberg the identity of complainants, Inspector Albert Beebe intervened to declare that the identity wasn't necessary, and the magistrate upheld the inspector.

MOONSHINE EVIDENCE

Rothenberg said:

"This is an open violation of the Snyder Act, and I will hold the case for court."

Twenty gallons of moonshine whisky were offered as evidence.

Lieut. James Hoban testified he raided a still in the residence of Louis Buckman, 55, at 49 Manilla street, and Buckman was held for court by Rothenberg without comment, after Buckman plead to the charge.

TWO WOMEN FINED

Police, acting upon the magistrate's orders of yesterday, brought Joseph Herskowitz, of 713 Manilla street, into Ceneral Police Court to testify against two women occupying houses on either side of him, of which Herskowitz complained. He testified.

Mrs. Jennie Millin, 42, of 715 Manilla street, was fined $50. Police said they found a quart of whisky in her home. She admitted it, saying she sold it to support her four children.

Mrs. Cecila Solomon, 38, of 711 Manilla street, was fined $100 after police said they found a quart of whisky in her home. Each woman was charged with keeping a disorderly house.

ROBBERY SUSPECT HELD

Edward Penn, 45, a Negro, of 110 Crawford street, arrested on a lottery charge, was held when he was identified by Louis Sellers, 65, of Center avenue, as the man who held him up Sunday night and robbed him of $28 in Wylie avenue.

Penn previously had implicated Al Weiner as the operator of the lottery for which he was arrested. Today he changed his story, saying Charles Pollack operated the lottery. Pollack was in court facing a charge of visiting a disorderly house when Penn made the accusation. Pollack promptly denied implication in the lottery. He was held. A warrant has been issued for Weiner.

Borah Enjoyed His Vacation, So Did Insurgents

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Here's way Washington politics now stand:

Democrats are voting as Republicans. So are the Republicans.

Politicians fear an extra session. We fear this one.

Borah enjoyed his vacation. So did the insurgents.

Progressives threaten filibuster to stop progress.

There will be no standing votes this season. It's dangerous to leave your seat for a second.

Good men rushing to the aid of the party must join both to make sure.

The helping hand is great until the thumb gets in your eye.

An oldtime Republican sums it up: "If the Democrats really help us it will be the first time I ever got suds from castile soap on a cold morning."

MRS. W. L. MELLON, JR. . . . MARRIED ONE YEAR AGO

SOCIETY PAIR MARRIED YEAR

Plans for Tomorrow's Big Wedding Upset as Families Learn of Secret Nuptials

Pittsburgh society was stunned today over the news that William Larimer Mellon, Jr., scion of the city's wealthiest families, and Miss Grace Rowley, whose wedding was to have taken place tomorrow afternoon, had been secretly wed a year ago in Wellsburg, W. Va. Young Mellon is 20, his bride 19.

With preparations for a brilliant ceremony in the Rowley home in Glen Arden drive, suspended, the two families gathered late today for a second conference to determine whether the quiet marriage in a Presbyterian manse, November 16, 1929, was to be supplemented by the society wedding which had been planned.

PLANS UPSET

As the social elite, particularly Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, who had announced his intention of being present at the wedding of his grand-nephew, awaited the verdict, work ceased o nthe installation of a special organ in the Rowley residence, where, at 5:30 p. m. tomorrow, the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march were to have marked the beginning of the ceremony.

Announcement that the wedding was off, at least temporarily, for the simple reason that young Mellon and Miss Rowley were already man and wife, was made last night as guests were preparing to attend a dinner at the Pittsburgh Golf Club given by Thomas Mellon II, uncle of the bridegroom, in honor of the bridal couple, supposedly, to be.

This was followed by a formal announcement:

"Mr. and Mrs. Elmer H. Rowley, of Glen Arden, announce the marriage of their daughter, Ethel Grace, to William Larimer Mellon, Jr. The marriage took

Action in Bow-Devoe Case Awaits Quiz

ARABIAN REVOLT RULER DEAD

BAGDAD, Irak., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Former King Hussein, of the Hedjaz, one of the most romantic figures in the Arab revolt against Turkey in which Lawrence, of Arabia, played so prominent a part in World War days, died today in exile on the island of Cyprus.

Hussein, who was one of the most picturesque and powerful rulers in Arabia in many years, threw his support to the Allied powers in the World War.

Thrones were found for his sons, Feisal and Abdullah, who now rule Irak and Transjordania, but fate was not so kind to Hussein himself. In 1924 Ibn Saud, the Wahasi chieftain whose power had been rising rapidly, revolted and drove Hussein into exile.

Little was known of the Arab chief Hussein until, largely influenced by the famous Lawrence in 1917, he led a revolt against Turkey and declared the independence of his country with himself as king.

MAKE READY FOR 1932 VOTING

Party Plans Permanent Home In Capital to Prepare For Impending Campaign

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The Republican party will maintain a permanent organization in the capital from now on, in preparation for the campaigns preceding the 1932 presidental election.

This was determined at conferences of party officials with President Hoover yesterday. Most of the officers of the Republican National Committee were at the White House, but Senator Fess, of Ohio, the national chairman, was not.

FESS EXPLAINS ABSENCE

His absence from the conferences immediately stirred fresh speculation of the possibility of his intention to retire. However, late in the evening the chairman issued a brief statement to the effect he had been advised the conferences would be held, but had not considered his presence necessary as they dealt with office affairs requiring only the attention of the officers who talked with the President.

The definite result of the consultation was that Robert N. Lucas, of Kentucky, executive director of the national committee, will have charge of the permanent party headquarters, assisted by George De B. Keim, secretary of the national committee, and James L. West, director of publicity. This is the group which, with Senator Fess, had charge of the work just before the congressional elections.

HAVE $7,000 BALANCE

Those who met at the White House said their principal business there had related to the committee's financial affairs. Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer, reported that after furnishing funds for congressional and senatorial campaigns, the national committee now had a balance of approximately $7,000 with no outstanding obligations. With Nutt at the White House were James Francis Burke, committee counsel, Jeremiah Milbank, Eastern treasurer, Lucas and Keim.

NATIONAL BANK SYSTEM SOLID

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Closing of a large number of banking institutions scattered through Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky and other states within the last few days was held by federal officials today as in no way endangering the national financial structure, although admittedly serious, in the various communities.

Few members of the national or Federal Reserve system were involved in the situation. Officials said that a majority of the banks were small institutions operating under state charter.

Officials said that the national and Federal Reserve system are in a very sound position.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 18.—(INS.)—"Public hysteria" was blamed today for 39 Arkansas banks' suspension of business for a five-day period. Four other banking houses closed for reorganization or liquidation.

American Exchange Bank officials said the hysteria followed receivership of Caldwell & Co., Nashville (Tenn.) investment house. Heavy withdrawals yesterday forced the move, it was announced.

Four other boys held in the case were released after the 13-year-old boy told the magistrate he threw the stone.

LEADERS URGE EXTRA SESSION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—The pledge of some Democratic leaders to co-operate with the Hoover administration will be given a severe test at the coming "lame duck" session of Congress, it appeared today, as Insurgent and Democratic leaders urged the calling of the newly elected Congress into special session next spring.

The Hoover administration will oppose a special session, which might be forced only through the defeat of the vitally necessary appropriation bills by filibustering or other dilatory tactics in the regular short session. Thus far, though, both Insurgent and Democratic spokesmen have denied any intention of filibuster.

Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, struck a blow at the suggestion of a Republican bolt to throw control of the Senate to the Democrats to punish the Progressives and avoid responsibility without power to legislate. He said:

"I have no patience with any such suggestion. I think it was made through pique, and perhaps should not be taken too seriously. It would be a baby act."

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The entire estate of former United States Senator T. Coleman du Pont, who died last week, has been left to members of his family. There were no public bequests in his will, admitted to probate today. The value of the estate was not made public.

HOOVER STARTS ON MESSAGE

By WILLIAM P. FLYTHE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(Universal)—President Hoover today began the preparation of his annual message to Congress, in which he will recommend the appropriation of hundreds of millions for public works and the relief of unemployment.

The President will tell Congress, it is learned, that every possible public project in the nature of waterways and buildings should be undertaken as soon as practicable. The appropriations to be asked will be much in excess of a billion, but will be spread over a number of years.

President Hoover will emphasize in his message what he has recently stated, following the election in which numerous Republican candidates were defeated—that politics must be submerged and all parties united to bring the country out of the depression and back to a state of normal prosperity.

UTILITIES HERE WILL SPEED PROJECTS

No Layoffs Contemplated, With Work Advanced to Insure Steady Employment

Assurance was given today by many of Pittsburgh's industrial leaders that they do not anticipate the laying off of employes.

Expressions were sought in conection with a statement by H. F. Sinclair, of the Sinclair oil and gas interests, that none of his 22,000 men is to be fired. Several concerns took the position that better times are around the corner, and improvement programs are being pushed ahead of schedule to take care of the employment situation.

PHILLIPS' OPTIMISTIC

P. R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company and its subsidiaries, owned by the Byllesby interests, said:

"No one can tell what is going to happen, but we do not anticipate dispensing with the services of anyone. Along with other corporations of the city, we are doing all we can to help the unemployment situation.

"We are advancing our 1931 improvement program and are planning things now which ordinarily would not come up until 1931.

"We have set ahead the car rehabilitation program of the Pittsburgh Railways Company and improvements of the Duquesne Light Company and the Equitable Gas Company.

"Our budget for 1931 will be around $20,000,000, or the same as in 1930."

EXTENDING LINES

S. W. Meals, president of the Carnegie Natural Gas Company, a subsidiary of the U. S. Steel Corporation, said of that company's plans:

"We are making some extensions to our lines in West Virginia and have 100 more men on the payroll now than we had a month ago. We are endeavoring to keep our men at work, so that there will be no suffering. That is the policy of the United States Steel Corporation, already expressed."

J. B. Tonkin, vice president of the Peoples Natural Gas Company, a subsidiary of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, said:

"We are not going to lay off anyone and will work every employe on full time as long as we can. If things should get worse, then it might be necessary to resort to part time, or five days a week, but we are not anticipating reducing our forces. As a matter of fact, it begins to look as if we will be able to work everyone full time."

Man Held in Death Of Beauty Shop Girl

EUREKA, Cal., Nov. 18.—(INS.)—The mysterious shooting of Irene Freese, 21-year-old beauty-parlor operator, of Fortuna, who was found dead in a Wildwood hotel, was being probed by authorities today. Although she left a note indicating she contemplated suicide, District Attorney S. E. Metzler declared he had evidence indicating she had been murdered. George Allison, the girl's sweetheart, was ordered held.

DETROIT, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The philosophy of Arthur Schopenhauer is blamed for the domestic troubles of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kurtz.

Mrs. Kurtz, 57, testified before Judge Harry J. Dingeman that Frank, 72, read that Schopenhauer wrote about women, then called her uncomplimentary names and chased her about the house.

Early work by Council on the 1931 budget was presaged yesterday when several ordinances in blank were introduced. These included the tax levy ordinance, the appropriation ordinance and the salary ordinance.

CITY SPURS FIGHT FOR CANAL

Leaders Here Meet to Pick Spokesman Who Will Press Erie Outlet Advantages

Determined to stress the importance of the Lake Erie-Ohio canal route over the short route proposed by Youngstown, Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce members today were selecting an outstanding leader as spokesman for the delegation pledged to attend the Mississippi Valley Waterways Association convention next week in St. Louis.

City Council joined in the pledge of 15 chamber members representing industrial, coal and steel interests to attend the convention at a meeting in the chamber auditorium yesterday.

COUNCIL ACTS

Council action followed the meeting when President John Herron proposed sending a committee with the business representatives. Among the councilmen will be William English, who presented a resolution in Council indorsing the project. Passed by an unanimous vote, the resolution called attention to the immediate need for action and asked citizens of Pittsburgh and Youngstown to strive together for a complete canal from the Ohio River to Lake Erie.

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang and City Engineer George M. Lehman will be in the delegation. County Commissioner C. C. McGovern promised the chamber members to ask the commissioners to send a representative to the convention.

WILL SHOW NEED

It was asserted that no antagonistic display would be held for Youngstown's plea to the association for indorsement of the short route project. Instead, Pittsburgh's delegation will endeavor to impress the convention that the logical project should be the long route.

Pledging to attend the convention were Frank R. Dravo, Templeton Smith, A. W. Dann, A. B. Shepherd, C. F. Bunton, Charles Orchard, J. M. Froelich, A. J. Vandermyer, A. E. Crockett, Philip Kussart, Henry Tranter, John P. Eichley, W. B. Rodgers and E. L. Schmidt.

In answering the charges of competing railroads which have bitterly fought the case, traffic surveys were quoted to show that the normal increase of freight business over the next five years will amply support the proposed railroad at an average rate per ton mile of about 20 per cent less than the average now received by railroads in the same field.

Newcomb is attempting to push construction of the new line in behalf of the estate of E. H. Harriman, who in 1907 purchased the charters of the New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago Railroad for $290,000.

LOREE LEADS FIGHT

Leading the fight for permission to build the line, which would be the first major piece of railroad construction to be attempted under modern engineering methods, is L. F. Loree, veteran president of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad and close associate of Harriman.

The present case, which has been before the commission for five years, is in its final stages. C. V. Burnside, examiner for the commission, recently recommended the application be denied but admitted the new line is needed. He proposed that existing carriers be allowed to build it. The final decision over the right of Loree to build the new line now rests with the full commission.

Workers Reassured By Cement Industry

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The American cement industry is determined to maintain the living standards of its workers, Frank H. Smith, of New York president of the Portland Cement Association, told cement manufacturers in convention today, in spite of decreased shipments. Smith addressed the association's annual convention. The industry, he said, is weathering the economic depression.

Weather Conditions.

A rise in pressure over the Lower lakes, the Apalachians and southward over Florida was attended by colder weather over most of this district and a cessation of the rainfall, except on the coast. It is colder over most of the eastern states and in the plateau and somewhat warmer in the Eastern plains.

Aviation Bulletin.

With the increase in the wind velocity this afternoon, the dense ground fogs which over much of the eastern portions of the district will lift, leaving the skies clear and ceilings unlimited, except on the coast, where clearing will be slow; visibilities will increase this afternoon and will probably be ample, but there is some prospect for fog again tonight over the more elevated areas of the district; winds will be light and variable, probably becoming easterly or southeasterly tonight; temperatures will change but little.

Only one automobile, a $3,000 truck for the Detective Bureau, is in the budget.

Salary increases totaling $82,545 were ordered eliminated from the budget by Commissioner Armstrong.

He said:

"That is a matter for the salary board," intimating that none will be granted.

Armstrong pointed out that $600,000 surplus, amounting to almost ½ mill taxation, is being expended for unemployment and that $1,250,000 worth of voting machine bonds are provided for in the budget.

Land, Water, Air Traffic Crippled by Dense Fog

Dense fog enveloped this district, along with a large part of Eastern United States today, according to weather bureau reports.

Train, trolley and automobile traffic was slowed up by the blanket of mist, and lights gleamed from skyscraper windows until nearly noon. Virtually a dead calm prevailed here, with the wind moving only one mile an hour.

The mercury was 48 here this morning, 12 degrees below yesterday's mark. Good showers were reported from some stations along the Monongahela River, Fairmont, W. Va., having .61 inch. The rainfall here for the last 24 hours was .08 inch. Little temperature change is predicted for tonight and tomorrow by Forecaster W. S. Brotzman.

place in Wellsburg, W. Va., November 16, 1929."

No inkling of the marriage at Wellsburg had leaked out even among thme intimates of the couple. Families of the two gasped when they learned the report at which they first scoffed was true.

GET MARRIAGE LICENSE

Mellon and his bride had intended to go through with the second wedding, without letting their families know their secret. The two accompanied their respective mothers, went to the marriage license bureau in the City-County building last Friday and obtained the license.

In recording their reply to the usual questions, Charles Hendrickson, chief marriage license clerk, recorded:

"Previous marriage, none."

At Wellsburg, Mellon had given his age as 25 and his bride's as 21, according to the records. This was done, presumably, to avert suspicion that the two were under age.

SOCIETY EAGER

With the license obtained, wedding gifts arriving daily at the Rowley home, Miss Mary Gay Brooke, of Newark, N. J., former classmate of the bride at the Ogontz School for Girls, here to be bridesmaid, and pre-wedding parties being given, society was awaiting with zest the ceremony.

The bride's gown, of eggshell velvet, with the traditional veil, were ready. Attendants of the bride were ready with exquisite gowns. Tonight the rehearsal was to have been held.

Then the word flashed that Mellon and Miss Rowley were already wed. The ceremony was performed at Wellsburg, W. Va., by the Rev. Dr. Milton M. Allison, of the Presbyterian Church. At Mellon's request, clerks of the Brooke County marriage license office had kept the marriage a secret.

Dr. Allison today confirmed the reported wedding and his statement was borne out by the official record.

Mellon and his bride were at the Rolling Rock Club at Ligonier, yesterday. Over the telephone he denied a report that he was married, but later admitted it, members of his family said.

Members of both families took the elopement as a youthful idea of a practical joke.

DECIDED TO ELOPE

The young bride was said to have explained the affair last night, declaring that neither families had been told of the event. She is quoted as saying:

"We decided to elope, but we didn't know how to tell our parents afterwards. Not that they objected, but they simply like things done in the conventional way. Mother and father were anxious to have all our friends see me married and my husband and I thought it would do no harm, and might please them, to go through with the ceremony.

"Then we thought better of it, and told them the whole story today. We were married quietly in the Presbyterian manse at Wellsburg by Dr. Milton M. Allison. That's all there is to it. It may sound rather complicated, but it really isn't at all."

Dr. Allison today said that Mrs. Allison was a witness.

MANY BRIDAL PARTIES

During the past week many leaders in the younger social set have entertained for the bridal party. Until shortly before the dinner at the Pittsburgh Golf Club and theater party at the Nixon, to have been given last night, none of her hosts knew of the elopement.

As late as Sunday night Betty McCance, daughter of Mrs. Frank K. McCance, of Thomas boulevard, entertained with a buffet supper in her home for the bridal party, guests here for the wedding and a few intimate friends.

Tonight Helen Louise Tunnell, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Paul Tunnell, was to have given the rehearsal dinner in her home.

On Saturday night John Murdoch entertained with a dinner-dance in the Longue Vue Country Club. On Friday afternoon, Harriet La Salle Dorrance, a debutante of the season, one of the bride's most intimate friends, gave a tea in her home, South Negley avenue, and on Thursday afternoon Virginia Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Johnston, of Beechwood boulevard, gave a bridge-luncheon in her home.

FRIENDS SURPRISED

All the young bride's friends refuse to make any comment except that they were astonished at the news of the Wellsburg marriage.

The mother of one of the girls who entertained said:

"She is a charming, intelligent girl and very young. We are sure that Mr. Mellon and his bride will be happy, for they are very devoted."

During the past week, Mr. Mellon and his bride of a year have spent much time at the Rolling Rock Club with friends.

Thomas Mellon Evans, of Oakmont, was to have been his cousin's best man. The ushers had not yet been announced.

Following the wedding a small reception was to have been held in the home. Plans for the wedding trip had not been made known.

GUARDS WATCH FILM CHILDREN

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Armed guards continued to watch the two daughters of Harold Lloyd and the 15-year-old niece of Mary Pickford, following reports that a wholesale kidnaping plot against children of motion picture notables was in progress.

Police Chief Charles Blair posted a patrolman as guard for Miss Pickford last Friday, and he has accompanied the girl ever since, escorting her to and from school. The child is the daughter of Lottie Pickford, Mary's sister.

DRYS HALT NAVY AIDE'S AUTO

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—A search of the automobile of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest L. Jahncke, of New Orleans, by prohibition agents became known today. No liquor was found.

Jahncke was returning from Baltimore a few days ago when the incident occurred. He was in a government car. The dry agents burned red flares in the road to stop the car, and despite Jahnck's protest, made a thorough search.

At first "outraged" Jahncke, confirming the story, declared he now looked upon the incident as more humorous than serious.

'Richard Dix' Who Thrills Police Proves Imposter

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Police at the West Thirtieth street station house basked last night in the memoirs of a movie hero.

At least he said he was a movie hero, although the idea was suggested to him. He had said, when a taxi ran him down in front of the Pennsylvania terminal, that his name was Richard Dix. The policeman asked:

"Isn't there a movie actor by that name?"

He answered:

"There is, and I am he."

At the station house, after the accident was reported, the hero picked up a revolver on the sergeant's desk, toyed with it reminiscently and said:

"This reminds me of the time I was filming a picture and was supposed to fire two shots in the air and break two silver balls. I tried it, and broke both globes with the first shot. Imagine my surprise."

The police gasped in admiration.

They gasped again this morning when they learned that Richard Dix is in Hollywood, and has been for weeks.

SOVIET PRESS HITS POINCARE

MOSCOW, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The government-inspired Soviet press today launched a bitter double-barreled attack on Raymond Poincare, former French President and Premier, and "French imperialism."

The attack apparently is an aftermath of indictment last week of eight alleged counter-revolutionary leaders and publication of their "confessions" of negotiations with Poincare, Briand and other European political figures for foreign intervention in the U. S. S. R.

Practically the entire space in today's issue of Izvestia and Pravda, official organs, is devoted to a scathing denunciation of M. Poincare and to publication of two articles by him appearing in the Paris Excelsior of October 30 and November 15.

Both newspapers refer to Poincare as "Poincare-war," and, it would appear, exhaust their vocabularies in describing the French statesman, whom both accuse, not only of planning intervention in Russia, but of being the principal instigator in the World War.

Father's Trial for Slaying Husband Tests Loyalty Of Wife Witness

Will the ties of blood, or the bonds of matrimony prove the stronger when pretty Mrs. Edith Allen McConeghy, Mifflin Township school teacher, is called to the witness stand to testify in the murder trial of her father, charged with the slaying of her husband?

Her emotions torn both ways, friends of the girl were uncertain whether she would speak words of defense for her father, or in condemnation of him.

FATHER AN INDIAN

Lee Allen, halfbreed Indian, noted as an expert trap shooter, former game warden and once a coal and iron policeman, is the father. He is 40, stands over 6 feet, and is noted for his relentless character. It is charged he lay in wait near his home in Curry Hollow road August 20 for his new son-in-law, Daniel McConeghy, 34, and shot him. He is said to have disowned his daughter when she married McConeghy immediately after her school closed last June. Later he became reconciled, and Edith took her husband to her father's home to live. Then they are said to have quarreled again.

TESTIMONY STARTS

Taking of testimony in the trial was to begin late today. The jury, 10 men and two women, was completed as the noon recess was taken. The case is being tried before Visiting Judge Davis W. Henderson, of Fayette County. Assistant District Attorney John F. Haggerty is assisted in the prosecution by Attorney Ralph H. Smith, who represents the McConeghy family. Attorney Louis Little is defending Allen.

That question was asked by Little of every prospective juror. Allen is half Chickasaw Indian, and was educated at the government school on the Chickasaw reservation. He came to Curry Hollow to live 20 years ago, and has six children by a white wife. All are unusually bright, and Edith had no trouble qualifying as a school teacher. She taught in the Lincoln Place School last year and this spring was at the Camden Hill School, both in Mifflin Township.

SURRENDERS SELF

McConeghy, a boilermaker by trade, came of a family that had lived in Curry Hollow several generations. He wooed and won Edith in the face of her Indian parent's opposition. Allen gave himself up after the shooting, although once, when wanted for a minor offense, he had fought off and disarmed officers who went to arrest him.

POLICE CLEARED IN DEATH CASE

James M. Clark, director of public safety, today exonerated police attached to Center Avenue Station of all blame in connection with the death of Charles Lapp, 65, no home, who died last week in the City Home at Mayview.

Dr. Eleanore Larson, of Passavant Hospital, was asked by Clark to attend a hearing begun yesterday and ended today, at his office to tell of treating Lapp after his arrest in the Hill district on November 2. She declined to go to the hearing, saying she had made a full report of the case at the time.

Turnkeys Thomas Sheehy and S. J. Carson and Desk Sergt. Henry Stoup, of Center Avenue Station, today testified Lapp made no complaint of being ill after being treated at the hospital.

Lapp was sent to Passavant Hospital when a cut was discovered on his head. After Dr. Larson attended the man he was removed to the police station. The next morning Magistrate Leo Rothenberg sentenced Lapp to 10 days in jail.

The jail physician, Dr. C. J. Ellis, sent Lapp to Mayview for observation when it was discovered he was ill.

A coroner's physician performed an autopsy, and said that Lapp's death was due to a fractured skull.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Nov. 18.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

At the recent British imperial conference the Dominions tried to eat their cake and have it too. They asked for equality with Britain and more local self government, which they got. They wanted preferential tariffs within the Empire, which they did not get. They sought greater political freedim for themselves and less economic freedom for Birtain. They wished to share the British markets but not the British responsibilities.

Economic unity and political unity usually go together. For that reason the Briand proposal for a federated Europe is a rational plan for closer economic relations. Our own union was founded on the necessity for economic unity. Business advantages came from a common law and common governmental responsibilities. If local spirit and diverse interests keep Britain and her dominions from having a real federal government the same forces will prevent closer economic ties.

Calvin Coolidge

At a time when the tendency in the United States is for more centralization in our government the British Empire is dispersing its authority. The result will be that the different dominions of the empire will form their own outside business connections while our states will be drawn into closer commercial harmony.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Ex-Abyssinian Air Force Home, Plans Sea Hop

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—"Col." Hubert Julian, lately the entire air force of Abyssinia, whose untimely crash as the only flier of his adopted country caused much anguish to Emperor Haile Selassie I on the eve of his coronation, came back today to his native Harlem.

Attired in impeccable morning clothes, gray-striped trousers, wing collar and all, he declined at first to talk about his adventures in Abyssinia, but relented presently.

He denied he had been expelled because of the crash of his airplane during an unauthorized flight, and said he was back in the United States to arrange for a trans-Atlantic flight from New York to Abyssinia. He declared:

"The Emperor and I parted the best of friends. You can prove this by sending a cablegram to the Emperor or a member of his staff."

He laid the blame for his airplane crackup on enemies. In addition to tinkering with his plane, he charged, these enemies had attempted to poison him at his hotel. The enemies had been made, he said, by his action in condemning foreign planes in favor of the one American plane in the Abyssinian flying fleet—the one in which he crashed.

He said he had resigned his post as air minister for his own safety.

into the assessors' offices on the fifth floor of the City-County building. Many women were among those seeking tax information.

Mr. McMahon says that the time being allowed for tax appeals is the longest ever granted in a triennial assessment in Pittsburgh. The Board of Assessors will consider all appeals and notify taxpayers of their decision.

OVERBROOK SPLIT

Property owners of Overbrook divided into two groups to protest the city's increased valuation of properties following annexation of the borough last year. At one meeting sponsored by the new Thirty-second Ward Board of Trade, City Assessor McMahon spoke to more than 500 men and women in the Municipal Building.

The other Overbrook meeting was sponsored by the Overbrook Board of Trade. This meeting, held in Central School, was attended by more than 450 men and women. The Overbrook meetings attracted property owners from East Brookline, the old borough of Overbrook and surrounding communities in the Thirty-second Ward.

Nearly 2,000 property owners attended the meeting sponsored by the Washington Heights Board of Trade in South Hills High School, among them being County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, former Councilman P. J. McArdle and Patrick T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America.

NAME COMMITTEE

A committee consisting of Harry L. Dietrich, John G. Reis, Robert T. Wyse, R. J. Macrory and Louis F. Skirboll was named to carry the Nineteenth Ward demand for extension of time for filing appeals to Mayor Kline and the Board of Assessors. Another committee of 10 was selected to assist property owners in preparing their appeals and to raise funds to carry the fight into the county courts if necessary.

THREATENS COURT ACTION

Macrory, president of the Washington Heights Board of Trade, declared:

"We have only just begun our fight up here on the Mount. We're going to carry our appeals to the board into the Common Pleas Court if necessary. We will not be oppressed by such outrageous taxation."

A resolution adopted by the meeting read as follows:

"The value of real estate has been seriously affected by the existing business depression, so that taxes on existing valuations are a grievous burden, which should be lightened instead of increased. The assessments are excessive, unjust, unfair, unequal and amount in some instances to confiscation of property."

M'MAHON HECKLED

Several times during City Assessor McMahon's talk at Overbrook, he was interrupted by rather "hoarse laughter." He took it good naturedly, once remarking he would have to wait until "the plaudits of the multitudes died down" before he could go on with his talk and another time replying rather pointedly to a rather significant remark from the audience.

He said:

"Well, we are not infallible, you know. I haven't got wings."

From the audience came:

And then in quick reply:

"Well, I had the courage at least to come out here and face you."

SUGGESTS APPEAL

Numerous complaints of unfair assessment were laid before the assessor, to all of which he suggested appeal in answer. One man protested that his two lots had been assessed at $1,500. He said:

"Two lots next to mine were sold recently for only $1,200. That's all they're worth and now I am assessed $1,500."

A woman complained that her property was assessed at $1,200. She declared:

"I only paid $450 for them and I doubt if I can get that much today. Why the street is still unpaved."

McMahon repeated over and over again in his talk that the board of assessors was compelled by law to place new valuations on Overbrook property inasmuch as the community had just become a part of the city and had to be assessed as such. Assessments in the city, he said, were higher than in the county because the tax millage was lower and it was the city's only means of revenue. He pointed out practices in other cities where automobiles, furniture, bank accounts and other luxuries are taxed.

P. J. O'Donnell, a resident of East Brookline, shot a rapid-fire barrage of questions at the speaker, criticizing methods of assessment generally and assessors in particular. Cheers from the audience greeted his query:

"Do your assessors reach their opinions in this matter of establishing valuation by sitting in an automobile in front of a house, admiring the shrubbery and landscape, Mr. McMahon?"

MADE OWN VALUATIONS

The assessor vigorously denied the implication and revealed himself as one of the assessors who had placed valuations in the newly assessed Overbrook district.

J. J. Demskie, president of the Thirty-second Ward Board of Trade presided at the meeting. Attorneys J. J. McGrath and L. P. McGrath, the former ward chairman, also attended the meeting and offered their services to property owners in the preparation of appeals.

CHARGE CONFISCATION

At the second Overbrook meeting, Richard Owen, president of the Overbrook Board of Trade and a member of the Allied Boards of Trade committee on taxation, presided. The resolution adopted at this meeting read in part:

"Whereas residents of this ward are persons of moderate means, the greater number of them having recently bought their property, and owing to the unusual depression of business and heavy obligations incurred by them in acquiring this property which consumes the greater part of their incomes, it is bordering upon confiscation to burden them with these additional assessed values."

LINCOLN MEETING

The committee charged with presentation of the resolutions to city officials also was empowered to represent the community in any concerted movement to bring about revision and lowering of assessments. The committee includes: William B. Hodby, J. Homer Criswell, C. C. Cunningham, R. T. Camin and Robert E. Lewis.

At the Lincoln district meeting held in the Lemington School, Alderman William Means and A. A. Donofri, notary public, offered their services gratis to property owners wishing to appeal their assessments. The meeting was presided over by J. D. Marks, chairman of the Lincoln District Board of Trade.

Quake Gases Fish In Baltimore Rivers

BALTIMORE, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Finding of hundreds of dead fish floating on the surface of Round Bay of the upper river came to the attention of Swepson Earle, state conservation commissioner. The commissioner said he believed it possible the earthquake shock felt in the area early this month might have opened fissures in the river bottom emitting gases.

Earle said he was confident the condition was temporary and did not think it would affect the department's hatchery at the head of the Severn.

The commissioner cautioned persons not to use for food the fish found floating on the river surface.

HEARING TO AIR ROW ON FINES

Mt. Lebanon Township commissioners are to confer with Justice of the Peace Ira Edmundson, the company which bonded him, and township auditors, in an effort to recover fines the auditors claim the justice failed to turn over from 1924 to 1929. The conference was planned at last night's meeting of the commissioners.

Since the auditors reported their findings up to 1927, they have discovered that more than the $508 first reported due the township, Mrs. Agnes R. Joyce, one of the three auditors, told the commissioners. Edmundson, given 30 days to appeal the auditors' original findings, took the case to Quarter Sessions Court, but by the time that court ruled jurisdiction lay with Common Pleas Court, the month of grace had expired, Mrs. Joyce said.

The commissioners voted not to make any fee payments to William King, architect who designed the Mt. Lebanon municipal building, until complete reports and bills were received. This action was taken after the commissioners read a letter from Mrs. Joyce, as a taxpayer, opposing payments until changes in the building are made to conform with requirements of the state Department of Labor and Industry.

FIGHT RENEWED ON ANNEXATION

Declaring that increased assessments upon properties in boroughs annexed within recent years to Pittsburgh was sufficient argument against further annexation, members of the Civic League of West Homestead went on record opposing annexation to the city at a meeting held last night in the West Homestead borough council chambers. President Walter Terrill presided.

Several speakers declared against annexation of either Homestead or West Homestead to the city. The league went on record as favoring erection of the proposed "high level" bridge which would unite Homestead with Brown's Hill, Pittsburgh.

STRIKE CANCELS VISIT OF DO-X TO SPAIN

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,
Special Correspondent Aboard the DO-X for the Trans-Atlantic Flight.

BORDEAUX, Nov. 18.—King Alfonso XIII of Spain, who was as eager as the Prince of Wales to see and inspect the giant Dornier DO-X, will not have his wish fulfilled.

The general strike and troubled political conditions in Spain prevent the King's coming to San Sebastian or Santander, and these places accordingly have been dropped from the DO-X program by Dr. Claude Dornier.

FOG PREVENTS START

The start for Corunna, which had been scheduled for this morning, was declared off last night by Dr. Dornier. Dense fogs and heavy clouds, the latter in some places less than 100 feet above the Gironde estuary, make the takeoff inadvisable, Dr. Dornier said, adding that the Bay of Biscay, over which the flight is to be made, is peculiarly unpleasant for flying this time of year.

On the flight from Bordeaux to Corunna, Col. Herrera, head of civil aviation in Spain, and possibly the Infante Don Alfonso, cousin of King Alfonso and Graf Zeppelin veteran, will represent the king, together with Gen. Soriano, chief of Spain's military royal air force.

PLANE TURNS BACK

Because of the strong current in the Gironde estuary at Roque de Thau, the DO-X's mooring place, Capt. Friedrich Christiansen yesterday attempted to fly the DO-X further up the river to Hourtin, 46 miles from Bordeaux. Confronted with a low, thick fog, he turned back. Two motorboats and a barge are on duty near the DO-X today should the crosswinds and current become strong.

Reports that French officialdom was displeased with the landing of the DO-X off Les Sables D'Olonne on Friday because Capt. Christiansen had not asked permission through nearby radio stations to make the landing were denied last night.

Capt. Christiansen declared he tried for hours to get into communication with some French wireless station to request government permission for the landing—which not only rid the descent of the "forced" aspect, but also appeased the French official conscience.

SPANISH POLICE KILL 2 IN RIOT

MADRID, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Faced with strikes and disorders in nearly every large city of Spain with the exception of Madrid, where normal conditions have been restored, the government prepared today to cope with all emergency developments. The measures followed an outbreak in Barcelona in which two strikers were slain and four wounded in a battle with police. In previous clashes 200 were reported injured.

In some quarters fears were expressed that the strikes, allegedly engineered to a large extent by Communist agitators, might develop into a full-fledged revolt. Extra police and troop detachments took command in all the affected areas.

In Madrid workers terminated the strike which tied up city transportation over the week-end. Stores reopened and the larders of a famished city were replenished.

Thousands of workers in other cities, however, abandoned their posts and battled police in major encounters. In Barcelona 200,000 laborers struck. More than 200 were arrested.

Stolen Car Crashes Bridge, Two Held

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Edward Jasinick, 24, Glen Lyon, is under arrest in connection with the theft of the automobile of Capt. Aten Rauch, Berwick, National Guard officer. The car was found abandoned after it had crashed into a bridge near here. Albert Nork, 26, Glen Lyon, found unconscious on the porch of a farmhouse near the bridge, will be placed under arrest when he leaves the hospital. Police said Nork admitted they took the car and that his story of being picked up by a motorist while walking along the highway was false.

An eight-hour schedule will be maintained on the West-bound flights and 6½ hours on the Chicago-New York trips.

VETS' DEMAND FOR BONUS IN CASH GROWS

Congress Faces Live Issue In Crusade to Hasten Payment of 3 Billions

By WILLIAM S. NEAL,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Demands for payment of soldiers' adjusted service compensation certificates in cash, totaling upwards of $3,000,000,000, are rolling in upon members of Congress from all parts of the country, it was disclosed today.

MAY BE LIVE ISSUE

Returning members report petitions have been received from many quarters, and definite movements are under way in many sections to create sentiment for the proposal.

Although the Treasury has opposed the plan, the pressure behind the movement is such that it may become a live issue immediately after the session opens in December.

More than 30 members have introduced bills to this effect in the House, and more bills are expected to be placed in the hopper early next month. The first move of backers of the movement will be a demand for a hearing before the House Ways and Means Committee.

PATMAN EXPLAINS PLAN

Representative Wright Patman (Dem.), of Texas, said today the proposal has gathered strength as a measure of spreading business by increasing the buying power of veterans. He has received reports that Treasury experts are studying the situation in anticipation of congressional demands, Patman said:

"Up to October 1 a total of 1,433,111 veterans had borrowed money from the Veterans Bureau on their adjusted service certificates, out of 3,600,000 outstanding. Experts of the bureau estimate that borrowings from banks bring the total of veterans borrowing money up to 75 per cent of certificates of any considerable value.

"The government now has about $700,000,000 in a sinking fund to meet the certificates upon maturity. A note issue of two billion dollars probably would be sufficient to give the veterans their choice of 80 per cent face value or keeping the certificates until maturity. The certificates could be retired by the Treasury in five years.

RAISE PER CAPITA WEALTH

"The certificate was based upon a debt to the soldier, to be paid in 20 years at 4 per cent interest. The government charges 6 per cent interest on loans to veterans, and this interest itself will almost discharge the government's obligation. The government has recently borrowed money as low as 1⅞ per cent interest.

"The average value of the certificate is $1,013, and it is estimated that payment of the entire amount would immediately raise the money in circulation from $35 to $49 per capita, and thus provide a sufficient circulating medium to assure good times."

The American Legion has not taken a position on the proposal, but several other veterans organization have indorsed it.

Van Etten was widely known in the East as a railroad executive, having spent his entire life in the employment of the Erie and New York Central lines. He retired from active service 13 years ago.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—William C. Godfrey, chief forest ranger in Crater Lake National Park, was reported dead of exhaustion last night after battling on foot through 44 inches of snow from Fort Klamath, on his way to Government Camp. He was found dying by Rudey Lueck, two miles south of Government Camp, after a searching party had started out from Fort Klamath, when Godfrey had been unreported for 24 hours.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Robert Gordon Duncan, self-styled "Oregon Wildcat," was sentenced to six months in the county jail and fined $500 today for using obscene language over radio Station KVEP.

Duncan made radio speeches last April and May, attacking chain stores and prominent Portland and Oregon business men.

Meteor Display Visible In Parts of County

Many residents in outlying districts of Allegheny County witnessed another meteor display last night, similar to the sights of the two preceding evenings when the sky was streaked with fiery particles. Weather conditions marred the unusual display in some districts.

Astronomers say the earth has entered the path of the Leonids, a large group of meteors which appear every 33 years. Local astronomers are not taking any official recognition of the display as it is not considered of much scientific interest.

In the Middle West many astronomers are photographing the counting the fiery particles, which result when the meteors hit the earth's protective atmosphere and burn themselves up in friction, producing a harmless glow.

ERROR KILLS 16, DOCTOR INSANE

MEDELLIN, Colombia, Nov. 18.—(Universal.)—Gonzalo Ramirez, young charity hospital interne, was hopelessly insane today as a result of the ghastly blunder he made in administering diphtheria germs to 49 children, resulting in the deaths of 16 of them.

The remaining 33 children are still alive, but physicians admit few, if any, can survive.

Parents of the stricken children stormed the hospital, known as Casa Cunas, last night. A police guard was about the place to prevent the [illegible] mothers from attempting to kill the hospital doctors and attendants.

Before he became a raving maniac due to the horror of his unintentional error, Ramirez explained he thought he was injecting anti-toxin into the children's blood. Instead of using the vaccine he took by mistake a phial of deadly diphtheria virus. Ramirez had just completed his training and was expecting to begin private practice.

Spurned Because She Did Not Smoke, Drink

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Lillian M. Miller Bauer told a Supreme Court jury that because she neither smoked nor drank a 19-year-old promise of marriage was broken by Dr. Frederick Smith, Fifth avenue dentist. She is suing him for $250,000 for breach of promise.

"I was only fooling you," she quoted Dr. Smith in her testimony. "You won't do. You're not suited to me because you do not smoke, drink or go to night clubs."

LEAGUE VOTES NAVAL CUT

GENEVA, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—The first definite step toward actual reduction of navies was taken by the preparatory disarmament commission of the League of Nations today.

By a vote of 11 to 1, the commission adopted an amendment introduced by the Russian delegate, Max Litvinoff, calling upon the signatories to agree to reduce as well as limit their fleets. The amendment was added to the first article in the tentative naval disarmament agreement reached by the "Big Five" of the conference two weeks ago.

United States Ambassador Hugh Gibson said he considered the amendment "superfluous," but voted in its favor. Poland alone opposed it.

GHOST PROVES ONLY FIREMAN

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—It seems the shadowy figure that unnerved Herman Darewski as he conducted his orchestra at a ball in Convent Garden wasn't a ghost after all.

Many of those who saw the ghostly figure stalk across the wall believe it to be the shade of Siegfried, Richard Wagner's heroic child seeking retribution for the strains of modern jazz that was filling the hall from Darewski's band. As the apparently-armored figure appeared the drummer ceased to drum. Darewski dropped his baton and collapsed into a chair and the dance abruptly ceased.

Now, after several days investigation, it has been determined to the satisfaction of the garden authorities that what really was seen was the shadow of a fireman making his nightly rounds.

FISHER URGES OPTIMISM

HARRISBURG, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Thanksgiving Day in 1930 should be observed with a spirit of optimism for the future as well as the time-honored gratitude, said Gov. Fisher in his annual proclamation. It read:

"This is the time to look for the bright side and to radiate the spirit of good cheer and hope."

Despite the economic depression and the drought-stricken harvest, the Governor observed:

"When we measure our blessings against our misfortunes we will find abundant reason for rendering thanks unto the Lord.

"If the harvests have not been quite so plentiful, there is still enough in store for all our wants; if the rains have not been quite so copious, the waters still flow in sufficient abundance for our needs; if business is not so prosperous as usual, industry is still finding much to do; if some hands are idle from unemployment, there is still a great host at work. Any troubles we may have will soon pass, and the good we possess will abide with us to call forth expressions of gratitude."

PROMPT PAYING HELD TRADE AID

If persons who receive credit pay their bills promptly, they will help promote good times, Attorney Allen S. Andur told members of the Retail Credit Men's Association at their meeting last night in the Elks Club. He said prompt settlement is highly beneficial to every individual, irrespective of position.

Attorney Andur, a collection specialist, warned credit men regarding activities of newcomers, asserting that in the main they are bad credit risks in any community until they establish their credit. As for bank and personal references he liked experiences with local merchants best, in deciding if the applicant is entitled credit.

Treasurer D. H. Goldmap reported the association growing in numbers. Miss Emma Curran, soprano, and Mrs. Laura B. Lang, accompanist, provided the entertainment. President H. E. Wilson presided.

OIL WELL SUIT ASKS $50,000

Damages of $50,000 for the destruction of their Glassport oil and gas well, because it was cased with line pipe instead of regular oil well casing, was asked by B. M. Wylie, W. W. McCune and Mary S. Nevin in a suit against the Central Tube Company, filed in Common Pleas Court.

The suit alleged the defendant company in October, 1928, supplied the pipe for casing the well, which had been producing oil and gas since 1917 and was worth $41,000. In removing the pipe to clean the well in March, 1929, it broke and telescoped at the bottom, making its removal, upon which they spent $3,091, impossible, the suit averred. The pipe cost $913.60.

URGES DIN LAWS BE ENFORCED

If ordinances existing in most American cities were to be engorced, all unnecessary noises would be eliminated within three weeks, Dr. E. E. Free, of New York, told a joint meeting of the health and municipal affairs committees and the medical council of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

The average city noises, he said, run along a certain level and are somewhat musical in their effect on the individual. But convalescents, or sick people, he added, are held back from recovery by the presence of unnecessary noises, while healthy persons suffer from the constant din.

DRY SEIZURES HIT BY COURT

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Without proof of liquor being manufactured, there can be no seizure of personal property under the internal revenue law, the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in the case of George Lewis, Butte, Mont.

Prohibition agents raided Lewis' home and charged him with violating the national prohibition act. The search warrant called for seizure of all property on the premises. Edward Ryan later claimed the property, alleging he owned it and rented it to the tenants.

Judge F. H. Rudkin, who wrote the appellate court's decision, held confiscation of personal property "is an innovation on the part of the prohibition department."

The decision affects hundreds of cases now pending in courts, authorities said.

$850,000 GIFT GIVEN COLLEGE

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—A gift of $850,000 to Washington University from Joseph B. Givens, retired St. Louisan, to be used for construction and maintenance of a school of architecture and for the free education of deserving students, is announced.

The fund is given in memory of Givens' parents, the late Joseph and Kate Abbey Givens. The elder Givens was a widely known architect and builder and designed many of the Washington University structures. An anonymous gift of $250,000 for the same purpose, announced six months ago, will be added to the fund which, it is hoped, will eventually reach $1,500,000.

Paymaster Fails Mourners, So They Quit

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—If there was mourning at the grave of Louis A. Thiel, it was because of the departed, not for him.

Some 85 lodge brothers, friends and relatives had assembled to pass an hour at the grave. For that, they were to be paid from $5 to $20 each under Thiel's will. At 2 p. m., approached—Thiel had set the hour—85 handkerchiefs were whisked out. At 2 p. m., passed, 85 handkerchiefs were whisked hastily away.

The lodge paymaster had arrived with the news the mourners would be paid nothing. Thiel had left a trust fund composed of bonds. The bonds depreciated.

RAILROADS ASK U. S. BUS RULE

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Representatives of Western railroads testified at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing here that motor buses and trucks were making serious inroads in the revenues of the carriers and urged federal regulation of this type of transportation.

The hearing is the first of a series being conducted by the commission. Virtually every railroad in the country was represented at the hearing, as well as bus and truck companies.

P. J. Neff, vice president of the Missouri-Pacific Transportation Lines, operating buses, said lack of interstate bus regulation made it necessary for railroads to put into effect experimental passenger tariffs, with the result there now seems no fixed passenger rates. He urged federal regulation also to prevent duplication of rail and bus service.

EASIEST WAY TO BREAK UP A COLD

Millions Say of This Proved Way

Works Fast—Makes You Feel Like a New Person Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL; to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets every three hours. Drink lots of water between times — that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents

NEW ATTRACTIONS ON PITTSBURGH STAGE AS CRITICS VIEW THEM

By GEORGE SEIBEL

AFTER MANY YEARS the scenic artist who painted the Sea of Tiberias on the curtain of Syria Mosque must realize that he "builded better than he knew." The Sea of Tiberias is another name for the Lake of Galilee, and so appropriate for the presentation of a Passion Play. Yesterday a Passion Play was presented on the stage of the Mosque.

George Seibel

It is not the Passion Play of Oberammergau—it does not pretend to be that. It is called the Freiburg Passion Play—and there may have been a Passion Play given at Freiburg from time to time. It is not a moving picture—it is not an oratorio—it is not a theatrical production in the professional sense.

Having defined what it is not, this Passion Play may be appraised for what it is. Apparently based on some old manuscript, it adheres closely to the story as told in the Gospels.

It opens with the entry into Jerusalem—it closes with the news of the Resurrection, proclaimed by an angel.

How it impresses the spectator will depend entirely on the spectator's mood. If he has seen the Oberammergau presentation; if he knows the standards of acting that prevail in the modern theater; if he looks for high literary finish and dramatic force, he may be disappointed.

If he comes filled with faith and a reverent spirit, he will receive a thrill and an inspiration.

SOME BEAUTIFUL SCENES

There are some beautiful scenes, particularly the Crucifixion, and there are many magnificent costumes, especially those of the Sanhedrin and the armor of the Legionaries.

The play itself is a composite—sometimes processional, sometimes pantomime, sometimes oratorio, frequently drama. The text, if based on an old manuscript, has been very considerably modernized in many places.

It is evident that the producers have seen the Oberammergau presentation and followed it in many particulars. But that does not detract from the merits of this production, which must be judged by itself. Where Oberammergau has a thousand auxiliaries, here are a hundred. Where Oberammergau has a continuous tradition, here are players with the elocution of standardized drama.

In its music, also, this Passion Play is churchly but not medieval. The incidental music ranges from Handel's Largo to Chopin's Funeral March. The choral numbers, very well sung under direction of a Luther choir directed by Homer Ochsenhirt, include Bach, Gounod, Handel, Mozart, Dubois and Faure. At the conclusion the audience stands while the Hallelujah Chorus is given as a prelude to the Ascension tableau.

AS TO THE ACTORS

Scenically and musically, in lighting and stage management, the production is impressive. As to the actors, it may be said that they are most sincere when they are least theatric. The best of them is perhaps the Disciple John, played by Josef Meier. Paul Dietz, who plays Pilate, is also very convincing. Victor Robert as Herod has a short scene in which he shows Herod as a very merry monarch, addicted to odalisques and the flowing bowl. Will Ehrhardt also plays Judas at first as a low-comedy villain. But both these players do well, within the range of their conceptions.

The principal interest should center in Adolf Fassnacht, the Christus, but he is not particularly impressive. He is a lyrical Christus, andante in speech and manner, almost always negative and anaemic. His Gethsemane was rhetorical rather than pathetic. But in makeup and in meekness he filled every requirement of the role.

FINE SACRED SPECTACLE

The thing as a whole is a fine sacred spectacle. It would be unfair to compare it with the Oberammergau Passion Play, because they cannot be compared. It visualizes the story of the Gospels, with few departures and some frills, but its chief appeal is in the reverence of the interpretation and the beauty of the tableaux.

The scoffer will not find anything that invites mockery.

The believer will follow the action with profound emotion, though the words are German, and may be as incomprehensible as the Aramaic spoken by Jesus and his Disciples.

NEW ACADEMY SHOW IS 'ORIENTAL GIRLS'

Jerri McCauley, feminine singer and dancer, shares honors with Jack La Mont, Jewish comedian, in "Oriental Girls," current attraction in the Academy. Among the special scenes is "Th. Pasha's Dream," with every member of the large cast of principals and the ensemble taking part. Madeline La Verne, an acrobatic dancer, heads the vaudeville portion of the bill. Frank O'Rourke, George Wagner, Billy Hamlett, Sally Van, Gladys Leland and Joe Lang are prominent in the burlesque revue.

ALICE ANN BAKER LIFE OF GEORGE SHARP'S 'LET US BE GAY'

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Alice Ann Baker does the eccentric old dowager act in the Pitt this week. She's supposed to be 72 years old. But she's not old-fashioned. She smokes "baby" cigars, says "hell" and "damn" as if she means them and sticks her nose into her granddaughter's love affairs. In fact, she is the life of "Let Us Be Gay," the current George Sharp production.

This "Let Us Be Gay" originally was a stage vehicle for Francine Larrimore. Later it was done in the movies as a starring vehicle for Norma Shearer. In that version, Marie Dressler was Old Dowager.

In the Pitt it serves to mark the return of Pauline MacLean to Mr. Sharp's company. And Miss MacLean was well received last night. She portrays the home-loving wife who becomes a more or less notorious lady when her husband goes "the way of all flesh."

FARCE AND MOONLIGHT

Their divorce comes early in the play; in the prologue. The rest of the drama, three acts of it, consists of drawing room farce and balcony moonlight. Coffee is served and bridge is played.

Peggy Dougherty chases in and out of the action "chasing" Paul McGrath, who has the divorced husband role. She is supposed to marry a nice lad, played by Hugh Banks, yet she insists on loving Divorced-Husband. But she does not get him, even though she does get tipsy. He and Ex-Wife go in for the reconciliation stuff at the end.

MAYBE IT'S A GAME!

Mabel Kroman is present as a sort of drop-your-handkerchief lady. She is always demanding little courtesies from her poetry-writing Romeo. John Winthrop portrays him. Imagine!

Robert Fiske is there pursuing Ex-Wife, being scolded by the erratic dowager and finding romance and mosquitos on a balcony.

The play is light and bright entertainment. It is old-fashioned and serious drama in the prologue, but after that it is sophistication on a rampage. What it needed most last night was speed. Unless set to a fast tempo its unconventional people lose what effectiveness a conventional type of plot can give.

Sun-Telegraph Read In Dutch East Indies

Only one English language newspaper, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, reaches the 40,000,000 inhabitants of the islands of Java, Sumatra and Borneo, according to word from Kisaran, Sumatra. The official language of the island is Dutch, but 28 American missionaries from the Pittsburgh conference of Methodist Church are spreading the English language and customs over the island. Each copy of the Sun-Telegraph, it is said, is passed from hand to hand throughout the islands until it becomes worn out.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

This Town of Ours

Another reason why there is a rift in the "Smiles" lute is that the Marilyn Miller-Fred Astaire uh-huh is getting too serious, and Adele no like . . . Two of the town's smootier hotels are to go into the receiver's paws . . . The Thompson Buchanans (Joan Lowell), who just had it melted, are blazing again . . . La Joyce is on the S. S. Majestic and the florists are busier . . . H. Reichenbach says the real trouble with the U. S. is Over-Prediction . . . The Giorgio (Chicagopera) Polaccos are telling it to a judge. She will re-marry her Ex . . . Ruth Etting will help Zieg. appearing in "Smiles" for the premiere finale only . . . The specs are getting as much as $150 a pair for that opening.

Ivy Palmer, of NBC, has been secretly sealed to an exec up there since Sept. . . . The Postal Telly must peddle 35,000 tickets a week to equal the normal sale the brokers sell . . . One of the Canyon's honorable booking agents will soon be via the alienation route for 100 G's . . . You know the expression: "Shake and Double Shakedown" . . . "Princess Charming" is shifting theaters already . . . Suggested to Carl Laemmle, for his autobiog: Tell how you urged Eddie Rickenbacker (in 1918) to go into the movies and commercialize his heroism. And—Eddie said No—but loud!

The "Scrappy" Lamberts, who recently reconciled, as it is laughingly called, have exploded already . . . Pity Clara Bow, another victim of: "Oh, you won't, eh? Then I'll give the story to the papers!" . . . S'better than selling apples . . . Vincent Lopez's newest heart is Betty Raymond, who wears diamonds instead of clothes . . . La Guinan, who is holding hands with Chas. Frey, her former heart-thumper, is plotting to give up columning . . . Libby Holman and Johnny ("Body and Soul") Green are feuding . . . After 3 yrs the Allan Walkers told their respective tribes they were welded . . . Claire Windsor's eyes are infected, poor thing. . . . Monica Allen, ex-Vanitease, and B. Lohmuller are youknow-what! . . . The Robert (Evetelly) Garland-Queenie Smith romance, which curdled, is blazing beautifully again . . . Lindsay Parrett, former husband of the "Ex-Wife" author, and Marion Moore, the interior decorator, were secretly sealed a fortnight ago.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.'s next tome will be the alleged diary of the Czar, written two hrs up to his execution . . . Herman Shumlin, after witnessing his new play, "Grand Hotel," click in smash fashion, collapsed and is in the ailing room . . . "Africana," a new sepia hotspot in Hahlim, will shelve the name to oblige neighborhood churches . . . Half- empty office bldgs are burning lights on their vacant floors so that the worst will not be so obvious. . . . The Union Church on W. 48th features an actor on Sabbath eve'gs to entice worshipers . . . Last yr about 1,700 people paid $18 each for the Actors' Equity Ball . . . This yr the attendance was about 600 at half that fee . . . Vera King, one of the prettier ones, recently melted, has a new thrill: E. M. Hoffman, a Detroit tophat.

Recommended to diversion seekers: Cab Calloway's grand wah-hooing at Loew's State . . . "The Intriguing Duchess" (Covici-Friede) . . . "Ragamuffin Romeo," a swelegant fox-trot in the Nat Shilkret manner, a honey of a record . . . Paul Morand's "New York" (H. Holt) . . . Donald Streeter's woodcuts in "Sob Ballads" (Putnam) . . . The tune: "I've Got It Again" . . . P. Whiteman's recording of "Body and Soul," plenty beautiful . . . The new bowling store on W. 46th which features femme pinsetterups . . . Bobby Dolan's grand crew at Barney's on W. 3rd. . . . The new mag, "The Vallee Review," the object of which is to "answer all untrue articles printed by columnists and newspapers."

The Prince M'dvani fight on that French liner was bait for the local rags plotted by the "Hell's Angels" exploiter . . . Howard Hughes, incidentally, whose millions made that film, cabled Eugene O'Neill for a scenario for B. Dove . . . Hughes also paid for a 20-word reply . . . O'Neill wrote "No" that many times . . . Mama Case ordered her daughter, Anita, home to Chicago because Broadway was getting her . . . The class mag, Fortune, went into the money at the end of the 4th issue.

The chap running that new horse-shoe pitching shop on 8th Ave. played Stonewall Jackson in the Shubert's "My Maryland" show . . . It's a girl over at the Morrie Ryskinds . . . The gals at Guinan's roller-skate home and to work for exercise . . . Hans Flato, the artist, drapes himself in the shortest trunks, no sox, a sweater and a monocle when gals come to his studio . . . Hans is a professional wrestler, so this is intended as a compliment . . . The class night place downtown still is Charlie Journal's Montmartre in the Winter Garden bldg. . . . Add Similes: As authentic as the photos of gals in the lobby of a Girlesk house.

Mary ("Artists and Models") Clarke will bride it . . . Betty Yorke, recently of "Scandals," who divorced him after a few months of it, will ankle another altar . . . SECOND WEEK OPENS FOR 'STREET SCENE'

"Street Scene," perhaps the most realistic drama of tenement house life ever staged, began the second week of its engagement in the Alvin last night. It also is the last week, since this picturesque blend of comedy and melodrama, motivated by human weakness and human passions, depicted by average human beings, will come to a close here Saturday night. The company of 50 is an excellent one, the play, by Elmer Rice, as fine an example of forceful dramatic writing as one ever sees, and the setting one that will be remembered longer than any ever made for a gorgeous revue although it is just a representation of some shabby masonry.

'It's a Wise Child' Fast And Furious Fun In the Nixon

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"It's a Wise Child," is a comedy in three acts, by Laurence H. Johnson, produced by David Belasco, according to the program of the Nixon Theater, where a large, smart audience witnessed the first performance here last night.

According to the reaction of this same audience to the work of Messrs. Johnson and Belasco, plus the aid of a company of artists, in which there is not a solitary disappointment, it is a broad and merry farce in a hundred teehees, this many titters, so many giggles, and how many haw-haws only the official scorer knows. And it is a safe wager that he missed more than a few in counting up.

FARE FOR SOPHISTICATE

It is juicy fare for the sophisticate, this problem of a child that doesn't exist but is sufficiently in conversational evidence to offer substantial proof that the old adage, of which the title of the play is only half, is no mere bit of triteness. And it is all the kind of fun that connotes the quality that caused another and earlier playwright of the same name as the father of "It's a Wise Child," spelled slightly differently, to be known as Rare Ben Jonson. For, while its theme and treatment is post-Victorian, the frankness of the treatment has the quality that we associate with the Elizabethan scorn of prudery.

For, be it known, this is no play for prudes. Yet it contains nothing offensive to good taste or nothing shocking to those who, like Walter Winchell, see no reason for secrecy about such a thing as "a blessed event," even though the talk and "anticipation" are all a lot of hooey. But it is such uproariously funny hooey that money intended to be laid at the shrine of laughter could hardly find a cause more worthy of votive attention. In other words, it's well worth the cost.

COMPANY IS EXCELLENT

Master Belasco's hand is evident in the fine cast he has selected. No person in it but appears to have been the exact person the author had in mind when he wrote the play. Minor Watson and Mildred McCoy head it, the first as an overworked lawyer, and the latter as a young miss whose ruse to avoid marriage with an elderly suitor causes much of the fixing that results in his sudden rush of labor. They are excellent.

Sidney Toler does such good work as a hard-boiled iceman that his exits are attended with much applause. The same remark applies also to the efforts of Lelia Bennett as a house servant. Helen Lowell makes believable her characterization of the kind of an elderly woman who doesn't know what it's all about, to use a modern expression. Olga Krolow, George Walcott, Joseph Striker, Harlan Briggs and Porter Hall complete the roster of an exceptionally fine company.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Sacred Songs is to observe its fifth birthday tonight with two special programs on KDKA. Five singers who took part in the first concert are to appear in the 7:15 broadcast. They are Letha Rankin, soprano; Jean McCrory Newman, contralto; Will Rhodes, tenor; Max Kroen, baritone, and Fred Ayres, bass. Two score artists present the second half of the celebration at 10:30 when Victor Saudek's Little Symphony Orchestra assists with Handel's "Largo," Schubert's "Ave Maria" and the Pastoral Symphony from Handel's "Messiah."

It is safe to conjecture that the sponsor will hear the program in her Squirrel Hill home and that the maid will have orders to "take the number" of any person who calls.

* * *

Like many Amos 'n' Andy fans who refuse to be disturbed at the witching hour of 7, the sponsor permits no one an audience when Sacred Songs is on the air.

A loudspeaker by a hospital cot is to bring Richard Knotts the voices of his proteges on KQV at 9:30.

* * *

Snoop and Peep, WCAE at 8:15 solve in word and song "The Shooting of Dan McGrew." These boys are good! Give them an ear.

THUMBNAIL SKETCH

H. V. Kaltenborn, the man who "Edits the News" for WJAS listeners at 8:30, worked his way from Milwaukee to New York by writing news for the railroads, earned his passage to Europe by slaving on a cattle ship and bicycled through England, France and Germany at a cost of 10 cents a day, to gather the background for stories he tells today. A poem about Brooklyn Bridge won him his first job as a reporter. Then he peddled a stereoscope, attended Harvard, became private instructor to Vincent Astor. Of modern authors he likes Leonard Merrick best. Plays tennis violently. Lectures at Columbia University. Has book about due, "We Look at the World." Has spent one-third of his life in travel.

QUESTION A DAY:

Are you sure that Jessica Dragonette is not the Enna Jettick Song Bird and that she does not sing in other programs? I feel certain that I heard her in the Camel Hour last week. Is Edward Thorgerson, the announcer, married?—Miss Alice, Steubenville, O.

Answer—Jessica sings for Cities Service only. Her contract is with NBC and Cities Service as exclusive artist. In the Camel Hour you no doubt heard Mary McCoy, soprano, who resembles Jessica, being short, a blonde, blue-eyed and shy. Both had successful careers in musical comedy before taking to radio. Eddie Thorgerson is not married, but we understand he is engaged to one of the NBC stars.

Crackels, squeaking: "That let's me in. Mine's all cyphers."

We could count on our fingers the number of words spoken by Ralph Freese, NBC announcer, when he stopped in KDKA yesterday. Ralph handles NBC business at KOA, Denver. He follows Polonius' advice: "Give many your ear, but few your voice."

* * *

His stop in Pittsburgh came at a time when nearly every local announcer, anxious to be on his toes, found himself in a slump. We've heard more fumbles on the air in the last three days than ordinarily emanate in a year.

Last night one of our best said: "Next we will hear a singer sing . . . so and so." And the other day, "We now transfer you to another program, where you will hear another studio." Oh, yes, we were perplexed for some moments about that Pitt game when we heard the score given in Pitt's favor first, then reversed for Ohio State.

* * *

Announcers are human and must be forgiven. Like ball players, they sometimes get into a rut and have a low batting average. Who doesn't?

TODAY'S TID BIT:

John G. Kennedy, Collier's hour, has the sort of voice the Lucky Strike boys are trying to develop in Eddie Thorgerson. His staccato utterances are as piercing as machine gun bullets and as booming as 75's.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The radio magnificos are a little nearer to a realization of their dreams of setting up microphones in the court rooms of the country, where murder is on the calendar and drama stalks the witness chair.

A fictional experiment in justice, as unusual as it is significant, will be offered by the N. B. C. under the sponsorship of the New York American for a period of six nights beginning November 25, when "The Trial of Vivienne Ware" will be broadcast over WJZ.

It will mark the first time in the history of American broadcasting that a murder trial—theoretical, but none the less authentic in its legal treatment and characterization—has been presented to the public, and with the public acting as the jury.

Radio Gives Realism Of Murder Trial

The trial, the work of Kenneth Ellis, will be aired with every consideration for the preservation of American traditions of justice. Such conspicuous figures as United States Senator Robert Wagner, himself a former Supreme Court justice of New York County; George Gordon Battle, nationally known attorney, and Ferdinand Pecora, ex-first assistant district attorney of New York County, will take the roles, respectively, of presiding judge and attorney for the defense and prosecution. Leading players of the stage and radio will enact other characters.

Fidelity to the realism of a genuine murder trial will be stressed throughout the production, such fidelity as trained minds, the practiced eye of John Golden, expert Broadway Czar in emotion, and the most skillful radio showmen of the N. B. C. can bring to bear.

Such a program, as unusual in its appeal as it is startling in showing on the air a new aspect in human values, seems to this observer to possess vast potentialities in the evolution of radio broadcasting. It should widen enormously the possibility of radio's service, recognized everywhere as a tremendous agency in the social life of the world. We shall see—and hear.

* * *

Who, after all, can forecast the possibilities of radio? What we appraise with such awed appreciation today is merely a forerunner of the greater services of tomorrow. Radio some day may be the outstanding forum in our courts of justice as it is now in our politics.

So far, tradition, long and compelling, has raised a forbidding hand to actual broadcasts from the court room. There has been a fear that judicial dignity would be violated, that the atmosphere of the theater would intrude to rob the court room of its accustomed solemnity once radio apparatus was shoved in front of the witness stand.

* * *

Microphones, however, need not be the merciless appliances of showmen bent on a melodramatic holiday, but the instruments by which the country at large may be informed vividly and accurately and promptly of the process of justice, and may even take part in the process. It might be worth considering as a possible effective means of lessening crime in the republic.

AWARD MAY GO TO LONE BIDDER

Recommendations that the Board of Education award the contract for the electrical work on the new Arsenal High School to the Cromerweth Electric Company were made by the property and supplies committee of the board at a meeting last night. The Cromerweth Company, only bidder on the work, is not a member of the Electrical Contractors' Association of Pittsburgh, with which the board has had many bitter disagreements over electrical bids.

The contract was recommended awarded to the Cromerweth Company on its bid of $42,300, contingent upon the bids on the general contract and other work.

The school board will meet today and will have before it for adoption a statement by President Marcus Aaron outlining the board's stand against what Aaron terms "boycotting" of the school district by the Electrical Contractors' Association.

Last night the general contract for work on the Lincoln School was awarded to Harry Wimer, Inc., on a bid of $205,596.

The building department was instructed to prepare plans for a central athletic field for South Hills and Carrick High schools and the Overbrook School.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Juicey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair, and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine."

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

GANGSTER GIRL

By JACK LAIT

Tom's Fiance Kidnaped by Group of Thugs

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Polack Annie, notorious gangster girl, flees Chicago and seeks the protection of New York's biggest racketeer, "Silk" Freeman. Freeman is fascinated by her beauty and provides an expensive hotel suite for her. At a night club the admiration of the young and wealthy Tommy Gillespie for Annie arouses Freeman's jealousy. Tom learns of Freeman's plan to get in on his father's trucking business and vows to fight it. He enlists the aid of "Cyclone" Tim McCloskey, leader of a tough river gang. McCloskey's men man the Gillespie trucks and a free-for-all fight ensues when the longshoremen refuse to load the trucks. Freeman has Annie make an appointment with young Tom to "put him on the spot." Annie meets Tom and he suggests that she leave Freeman.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI.

At 10 o'clock on the evening that Tommy Gillespie was spinning along upper Manhattan in a taxi with the flaming red head, Annie, his fiancee, Alice Schuyder, who had been calling his home, received a telephone message.

"This is the operator at the Post-Graduate Hospital," came a soft, evenly modulated voice; "Mr. Gillespie's nurse asked me to call you. He is in a very serious condition, possible fracture of the skull, and wants you to come to see him at once."

Alice, cold, unemotional by nature, was fluttered. She called her maid and instructed that her car be brought to the front door. She had learned from her father, who was Tall Tom Gillespie's banker, that Tommy had been in a street brawl on the waterfront, and she was peeved to learn that Tommy had so lowered himself as to become involved with the toughs and thugs along South street. And, too, this had been the first information that he was working as a driver on his father's truck. What would her friends say?

But now that she realized Tommy was badly hurt, she dressed, rouged her lips and powdered her face, and with studied calmness to forestall talk among the servants she stepped into her car.

"Post-Graduate Hospital, Charles," she instructed, and lighted a cigaret. The car slid gently from the curb and turned into Park avenue south. Along through the devious ramp around Grand Central Station and down into Fourth avenue. At Twentieth street it turned and two other cars cut in sharply behind it.

Alice's machine had already made the middle of the block before two silent, mysterious cars in the rear, curtains drawn, swept by, side by side, and cut in at a sharp angle before the limousine. Forced to the curb, Charles jammed on the brakes. Alice pitched forward in the car, and when she had regained her seat she saw a man who had leaped from one of the machines approach from the left and crash his weaponed hand down on the head of Charles, who crumpled with one moan.

Held Prisoner

Two other men, on the right, wrenched open the door, and one of them grasped Alice by her silk-clad ankles and dragged her bodily from her seat. As she sprawled in an undignified attitude in the tonneau the other whipped a foul-tasting rag around her mouth between her lips, and then tied a handkerchief around her eyes.

Rough hands caught her up and she felt herself carried a short distance and thrown onto an automobile seat. Gears ground and the car moved swiftly off. She flopped from side to side, against the bodies to the right and left of her, as the car cut corners. She thought that first she had been going east and then north, then west. The calmness of her nature, the astuteness of the well-bred woman were gradually deserting her. Then Alice fainted.

When she came to, the gag and the handkerchief had been removed. She was lying on a bed and her first impulse was to adjust her skirts, which were above her knees. As she arose she saw sitting beside her a brutal-featured, heavy-set man who was watching her with smirking countenance.

She looked into his beady, vice-laden eyes and shivered.

"Where am I and what is the meaning of this?" she asked with chilly dignity.

"You're here an' there ain't no meanin' as far as I can tell ye, lady," chuckled the man, arising and walking to the door.

Annie Makes Report

Alice looked about her. Gray, unpictured walls. A room devoid of furniture, save for the fiddleback chair near the bed. No window, two gaping, round holes in the wall on the right, holes through which soughed the air as through a ship's ventilator—holes which she knew not, but which led to outside—the "windows" of Silk Freeman's Park avenue apartment.

The man had opened the door and Alice saw that it was of iron.

"Okay," he called, stepping back.

It was far past midnight when Tommy Gillespie kissed Polack Annie on her ripe, crimson lips and she left the taxi in front of the Hotel Napoleon.

There had been no calls. There was no message. She went up to her garish suite and telephoned a number. Old Pete answered. Mr. Freeman was out. He would try him at several places and tell him she had called.

In five minutes her bell rang.

"How was it?" asked B. B.

"Great."

"You're in early. How far'd it go?"

"Oh, he's only a boy. He's goofy over me. But he's bashful."

"Well, you ain't."

"I don' want him to get scared or suspicious. I couldn't make it too raw. You ain't in no terrific hurry, are you?"

"N—no; that is, when something's done it's done—when it's gonna be done it's maybe."

"Well, gimme a li'l chance to work on him. You want this copper riveted in the bag, don't you?"

"It better be."

"It will be. I got him all dated up pretty."

"Okay. Did he slip you any lowdown—any o' their plans?"

"No. The lad was too hot an' bothered to talk anything but me. He said he had to get in early becus he had to get up early; that's all. Leave him to me—he'll open up."

"Sure. Tell him what a hero he is—what a manly battle he's makin' against the powers of evil. That'll put his tongue on ball bearin's. Boys that age—when they're tryin' to bull a broad—go heavy on how brave they are. String along with him. Ask him to let you in on what other marvelous deeds he's goin' to put across. That an' your red hair——"

Tom Questioned

"Oh, he didn't overlook that. He said it was more Ha'vard colored than Yale colored, but he'd rather switch the pennants in his room than the shade o' my wind blown. He babbled on that way for hours."

"Let him babble while he's able. What are you doin' later?"

"It's pretty late now. I've had a hard day after a tough night, young feller. We can't all of us be like you, Big Boy. I was just about asleep when you rung, an' I'm deep in the hay."

And the diaphragm popped with the cutoff at the other end.

Tall Tom Gillespie sat in his library, in lounging gown and slippers, smoking his pip, sitting up to wait for Tommy. When the boy came in he tried to pass the door, an unusual act.

"Hey, there," called Gillespie. "Give an account of yourself."

"Oh, I was——I was just out——"

"Not with Alice—she 'phoned you. And her father was here for several hours."

"No—not with Alice. With some one else. Some one you don't know."

"Some one you do know?"

"Why—yes, of course—what makes you think otherwise?"

"There was a call here early today, wasn't there? A woman, I'm told."

Advice From Dad

"Yes—there was. No one who'd interest you, pop."

"I want to caution you, son. I have some idea of how this Freeman operates. Look out for strangers. He knows by now that we're giving a fight. He knows you're in it in person. Bob Schuyder and I discussed the whole situation. We aren't any too sure of winning. He's standing with us all the way, and he has money and influence."

"You have some, too."

"I guess I have. But we're not overconfident. And, above all I'm scared about you. That man will trap you if he can. Look out who you go with. Don't get into autos with strangers. Don't go to places unless you know them and the people who ask you. They'd take you for a ride or put you on the spot without laying down a cigaret."

"Oh, dad, you're seeing shadows and ducking ghosts. They wouldn't dare. If anything happened to Tall Tom Gillespie's cub you know the police would run that crew into the bay."

"Well, in Chicago they murdered a public prosecutor and a newspaperman; they've kidnaped stars and millionaires; nobody is immune."

"Don't worry about me, pop. I'm safe with this—person. I'll be on the job—at seven. Good night."

"Good night, son," answered the boss trucker. "I'll say a prayer for you—but look out!"

"The Understanding Heart"

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY

Words are excess baggage here. We hope you can see by the wistful eyes of the mounted symbol of the law what's going on under his dark blue coat just about in the center of the square between the four top buttons of glittering gold.

The Species Motor-Cyclus Coppus is usually a blue streak to strike dismay to the well-meaning heart behind the wheel, and to the faithful heart beside him—who keeps turning a head over her shoulder like Lot's wife, even when Lot is only going 20 miles an hour on a ballroom floor 40 miles from the last outskirts of Nowhere. We think him very handsome, and very impressive, but he makes a bold heart humble. He makes grown-up Forty-five feel like green Seventeen. The most eloquent tongue clacks up and down and then lies helpless; it can't think of a word to say in his presence. He makes the "life of the party" look like a frightened rabbit; and the innocent look and feel like kidnapers. We admire and like him—but he won't seem to like us. We wish long after a devasting encounter with his blue majesty that we could have made him know that we really think him wonderful to look at, most elegant and dashing; that we admire the glisten of his gold and the glitter of his shields, and the sheik-hair polish on his puttees, and that we really want to please him. But there! he will whisk up and down the fine roads of the land the rest of his life—UNKNOWING!

Once in a while they do say a lady—a pretty lady—is able to express herself properly to him, and make him understand her innocence and her admiration. Once in a while they do say the fierce blue minion of the law has an understanding heart when he comes upon a parked car under the gold light of the autumn leaves far away on a state road, where two young cheeks pressed against each other in ecstacy can't bother a soul in the world.

Dry Milk in an Infant's Diet

DR COPELAND

When mother and infant are so fortunate as to depend on breast-feeding, the future of the child is bright. But when it becomes necessary to resort to artificial feeding new troubles come along. Then the mother must know just the best thing to do.

When weaning time comes for the baby, cow's milk forms the basis of the diet. Pasteurized milk is sure to be safe. The only substitute is certified milk of the best kind, milk from a clean dairy of unquestioned standards, promptly delivered.

Unfortunately, there are times when it is not possible to get cow's milk. In case of a milk shortage, if one is traveling or if for some other reason dependable and safe cow's milk cannot be had dry milk, milk powder or evaporated milk may be used.

These preparations are made from fresh cow's milk. They contain all the normal ingredients of milk except water.

Dried milk is good for many reasons. It is practically sterile. Its vitamin content is not lowered materially. It is valuable as an addition to milk formulas when a concentrated food is desired.

Dried milks are easily digested. Because they are sterile, they have advantages over fresh milk unless the product comes from an unquestioned source. Of course the dried milks are more expensive than the fresh milk, and are not likely to be used when good fresh milk is available.

Fresh milk possesses intangible qualities that make it of paramount importance in the baby's diet. But the good food mixtures made of the dried milk can be supplemented by giving the infant orange juice or tomato juice, and if necessary, cod liver oil.

We have to be careful to protect the babies from rickets and conditions like scurvy. For this reason we build up the diet with added vitamins and minerals supplied by the fruit juices and cod liver oil.

Everyone should benefit by a doctor's advice in making up the infant diet. However, there are some practical points which the young mother should know. Indeed, such knowledge is a most important thing, for upon it depends your baby's present and future well being.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Edith Fairfax Bobs Into the Picture Again

It seems to me sometimes that never in my life with Dickey have I planned any pleasure for ourselves or others without having him effectively smother my enthusiasm and happiness with a soaking blanket, either intentionally or unconsciously.

Of course, I know that this is an exaggeration, that many times he does co-operate with me beautifully, but there was no room in my heart for modification of my strictures, when in answer to my appeal for his help in giving a party for Mary, he said, haltingly, that he had just "turned Ede down" when she had telephoned him asking him to come up to the city and help with the magazine, and that he "didn't know."

It was the name "Ede" which set ablaze the anger that otherwise I might have been able to keep smoldering for the time, at least. But ever since Edith Fairfax's transformation from an art student of less than mediocre ability to an unusually capable business woman who shares with Dickey the responsibility of publishing an art magazine, her name has acted upon my spirits in the same fashion as a matador's red flag is supposed to affect his adversary.

For the transformation in Edith Fairfax is a spiritual as well as a mental one. In the old days, when she was a singularly appearing girl of delicate wistful beauty, she also possessed a high sense of honor, which had enabled her to fight successfully the hopeless love for Dickey, which I knew was hers, which, indeed, in one terrible time of stress between us she had confessed to me. But I felt now as if something predatory and ruthless had leaped to power within her since she had realized that she was as much a success in the business field as she had been a failure in the artistic world.

That Dicky's comfortable attitude of comradely friendship was the only barrier—though an effective one—to her secret desire, I was sure. No compunction for me, no sense of disloyalty to a friendship of years, swayed her in the slightest degree. I was sure of that, and the knowledge provided ample fuel for the flame which had kindled at Dicky's words.

Luckily for my own dignity, my anger does not often explode. Dicky often comments that when I am "deadly mad" I am silent. I imagine he had this in mind when, after a long interval, in which I uttered no word, he said again:

"Don't you see?"

"I'm sorry," I returned with frigid elaborate courtesy, "but I fail to see any comparison between the two cases. You often have told me how perfectly capable Edith is in the management of the magazine—she can run it with one hand tied behind her—I believe is one of the least of our encomiums. She understood that you would be down at the farmhouse for some time. Why a turned-down request of hers should prevent you from helping to make your niece's first party a success I really cannot see. But if you can, that is your privilege. I am terribly sorry to have annoyed you by asking, but can readily understand that I was not aware how important Edith's whims have become. So do not bother any more about it. I haven't told Mary that I expected you, so no harm is done. Good-bye."

I hung up the receiver, resisting the desire to slam it down vigorously on the hook, and hurried out of the booth past the operator's desk, and through the lobby to the street door. I had on my coat and hat, and I meant to make the operator believe I had gone out of the hotel if Dicky should attempt to call me back. With the feeling that I was playing a decidedly cheap role, I doubled back into the drugstore of the hotel and ordered a soda, which I could not swallow, so choked was I with anger. But my ruse was unnecessary, for when I came back into the lobby the operator gave me no message.

Fortunately, I had said no word to Lillian or Harry about telephoning Dicky, so I would not have to mention his boorish reception of my invitation. But I could have made no comment, anyway, for Mary, dressed for the street, was in the sitting room when I came back, with so happily excited a look upon her face that I hurried her out of the room with a parting injunction from Lillian not to be late for dinner.

"You know what an old farmer—" she began, but I cut her sentence in two with an impolitely closed door, and looked uneasily at Mary. Would she understand the reference? I had myself determined to keep from her all knowledge of Phil Veritzen's dinner until the last possible moment before we were to go, but, unfortunately, I had not told Lillian and Harry of that resolution.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, November 19

Although the astrological prognostications for this day have a most fortuitous aspect, promising advancement, fulfilled ambitions, increased fortunes and decidedly prosperous conditions in many directions yet there is a sign of outstanding events more or less exciting or sensational. While calm and well-directed control of affairs should be crowned with gratifying success, yet a proclivity to turbulent words and actions may prove a frustrating factor. There are intriguing or baffling situations.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which a very great deal depends on calm and well-directed actions, with firm control of tongue and temper. Also there may be an inclination to strange or precipitate personal behavior, which may prove a disconcerting force.

A child born on this day may be expected to be efficient, capable and ambitious in many solid directions.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Signs of Sentimental Paresis

Choosing a life-mate is the great Intelligence Test, in which some women and most men register about half-of-one-per-cent mental efficiency.

* * *

At 30, a man is almost woman-proof. After that, there is a gradual softening of the heart, the brain, and the vanity, which makes him more and more susceptible.

* * *

Promiscuous petting is the first symptom of sentimental paresis, that proves there is a vast vacuum where the brain ought to be. Free-for-all kissing is the "To Let" sign.

Before marriage, a man will call "long distance," just to hear the sound of a girl's voice; after marriage, he will walk a much longer distance, just to get away from it.

* * *

The "obey" has been taken out of the marriage service, to please the woman and to make it more sincere. But, to judge by most modern marriages, they will have to leave out the "love, honor and cherish" and the "till death us do part" before it will be absolutely honest.

The average modern love-affair is just a little prologue with an abrupt ending, no suspense, no variety, no surprise, no dialogue, no thrills and no continuity.

It is easier for a man to love an attractive woman than to love a brilliant one or a dazzling one, just as it's easier for him to appreciate a parlor ornament than a work of art.

* * *

Love is as hard to diagnose as a cold. You never know how or when it started, whether it is serious or superficial, or just how long it will last.

* * *

When a woman talks bitterly of "ending it all," it is a sign that "the one man" has gone out of her life; when a man talks that way, it is a sign that there is one woman too many in his life.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Is It Wrong to Hide Your Natural Charm Behind a Beauty Parlor Mask?

It is "vulgar and unnatural" and "against the will of God" to slick up your nails n' carmine your lips put on your best bib n' tucker and step out among 'em?

Tillie thought it was and she busted into this department with a record peeve on gals who did it . . . and on a world that passed up her shiny nose and straight-to-the-front eyes and handed them all the bouquets. We told her to can her grouch, do a little work on herself and go in for regular living.

But that idea gives another Sally "the shock of her life" and she's crashing in like an oil truck today to tell us so.

It's certainly a red-hot broadcast . . . and maybe you'll agree with it. Tune in and give us your vote.

"Dear Sally Martin:

"For a long time I've been reading your column and most of the time I've agreed with you. But today when I read your answer to Tillie I got the shock of my life. Somehow, I just can't believe that you ment what you said. 'Put on your prettiest dress, etc.—Sure you'll get hurt, but you'll also get—life!' Right Sally! She'll get it. The dirtiest slice of it.

"You call her a 'a 'fraid cat'—well, I hope she always will be. Then she'll be safe.

"Yes, no doubt she will have to 'hit the trail' to find Prince Charming, but she'll find that trail easier to travel by being natural. She won't find him hanging around cheap dance halls, or on gin parties, or the other places where girls with vulgar painted faces and immodest attire congregate.

"I've seen a lot of life, Sally. I'm modern in every sense of the word, but I long ago passed the mile-stone that puts me out of the flapper class. And I know that the girl who makes up, and dresses with the one thought of attracting men, always overdoes it . . . and attracts the type she'd be better off never to have known.

"I have a friend, somewhat younger than myself . . . one of these moderns — ah, Sally! There lies a tragedy! She needed no adornment. She had many friends. Worthwhile ones. But suddenly she began going in for permanent waves—ruining her lovely natural one—and for make-up that certainly didn't improve her any. She went in, too, for dressing that was fashionable, but not so modest. Why? 'Because the other girls did it,' she explained. Her dates began to increase, but I noticed soon that the worthwhile ones were giving place to the vultures.

"She has had her taste of life all right. But at what a price! I still love her dearly, and my heart aches bitterly at the way she has changed. Something very sweet, very appealing, has vanished.

"The lily needs no adornment. There may be a rose in the gutter, but its beauty lasts but a moment. And then—dust. Why land in the gutter for anything so transitory?

"Human nature never changes. We are no better and no worse than our mothers were. But there is still this difference. The youth of today has too much freedom. No matter what you say, or how you try to get around it . . . it remains a startling truth. And this friend of mine is a victim of it.

"And then, in the face of it, you try to encourage this sweet, modest little Tillie to try to be like her. You encourage her to go in for dress and make up that is vulgar and unnatural. You're advising her to dress the part of Insincerity—to assume a role for which God never made her—and to go out and meet Life and Disaster.

"JUST ANOTHER SALLY."

Well, if you're going to start quoting God, sister, why not be consistent? According to divine plan, all clothes are unnecessary and unnatural. If we were reverent and righteous, we'd all trot around in our birthday blushes. But just try and do it, and see where you land.

"But that's absurd," you say. "Of course people have to cover their bodies—"

Yes, thank Heaven, they do—and the more some of 'em are covered, the better for the landscape. But if you're going to defy God by covering up some of His handiwork, where'll you stop? And why is it any worse to cover a shiny nose with powder than to cover a skinny shank with a sock?

Now, as to the rest of your entertaining but extremely inaccurate statements, we'll see. Like most self-elected saints, you don't care a doggone what you do to the truth, so long as you boost yourself to the Pearly Throne and heave the other fellow into the dog house. As a matter of fact, I never advocated gin parties, cheap dance halls, gutters, or other low forms of diversion for Tillie, and you know perfectly well I didn't—you're just trying to show off.

I advised Tillie to snap out of it and live. Gin parties and gutters are not life—far from it. But neither is sitting home, mourning a shiny nose and a grouch, and wondering why love doesn't come to you in a big way.

And it's just as wicked and unnatural to stop around home and get drunk on gloom as it is to stagger out and get drunk on gin.

Tillie's most sacred duty—every girl's most sacred duty—is to live beautifully, happily, abundantly. And if a shiny nose cramps your chances, you've no business to let that nose stay shiny.

Lilies may "need no adornment" . . . But few of us are lilies. And quite plainly, Tillie wasn't one. She was a smug, stupid, self-centered little pig, who was sore because her smugness and stupidity hadn't bought her a bunch of lollipops. She wasn't happy, and she didn't deserve to be, for none of us has any right to happiness unless we're willing to work for it.

It's no more harmful for a girl to wish to attract men than it is for a pansy to want to attract a bee!

If God thought love was naughty, why did he tint the rose?

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT NEWS

WELFARE FUND PAST HALF-WAY POINT

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

"Dear Mister Pfarr:

"If you were listening to Tampa, England's court magician, on Saturday, and you probably were, you may have wondered why the rain, bell ringing and train whistling was better than it usually is from WCAE. Well, here is the answer. It was my first appearance on the air.

William Pfarr

"I was the bell of the train, also its whistle away off in the distance. John P. (Porky) McFarlane, who is on the air every afternoon with Tampa doing the train pulling out of the station, the whistle blowing in the distance and the wind blowing like the middle of winter had me helping him Saturday. McFarlane says that I am pretty good on the train whistling but that I will have to loaf around the railroad tracks some time before I get to be a good whistle away off in the distance.

"Those radio performers have it soft. I always thought that it was hard work but it's just like the writing racket. They kid back and forth and smoke on the job and when it comes time to go on the air they take their feet down off the nearest desk or chair and just act natural before the microphone, which looks like a mantel clock. They don't even have to know how to run a typewriter.

"As always,

"E. P. O'B."

The hero or heroine of the hunting season, so far as we're concerned, is Helen Marzolf, of Millvale. Her father is A. E. Marzolf, of the Heinz Company.

Helen is 14. A few days ago she was feeding the chickens in the Marzolf yard when a rabbit scampered into the garden.

That night, at the Marzolf dinner table, it was, "Please pass the rabbit."

Tom Stanton, of Edgewood, recalls the days when there were no efficiency experts to prevent steel workers from resting between heats. A superintendent walked up to a resting laborer, handed him a rule and said:

"Get me the measurements on that plate."

Later he came back.

"Well, how long is it?"

The laborer rolled his chew and replied:

The first interest of a ballplayer's wife is this: "How many hits did hubby make today?"

Four out of five ballplayers, returning to their homes after the game, are greeted by that question. Pie Traynor, the Pirate who will soon be a married man himself, was in town yesterday long enough to tell the story of the hard-hitting player who held a slim lead for the National League batting championship.

It was his good luck to be able to report, more often than not, "Three hits out of four today, honey," when the spouse put the question to him. But one day, after a disheartening doubleheader in which he had failed to get a hit in eight times at bat, he straggled home for dinner—

"How many today, dear?" the little woman queried.

"Lissen," the ballplayer barked, "you do the cooking around here and I'll take care of the hittin'."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 18.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Heard our ace, Eddie Rickenbacker, over the radio last night. He was just decorated last week for bringing down half of Germany. We are the luckiest nation in the world to have heroes that can live long enough to have their deeds recognized. They give Eddie what was said to be a medal, but we don't know that, for his whiskers are so long now that they cover it up. We have every kind of week in the world. There's "Apple Week," "Grin Week," "Don't Blame Your Congressman Week," "Do Your Xmas Shopping Early Week." Let's add one sensible one to 'em all, "Remember Our Heroes Week." You would be surprised how many we got that have been forgotten.

Will Rogers.

Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

TOWN HALL SITE PROTEST HEARD

Hopes of Schenley Farms proponents for location of the new Town Hall at Duquesne Garden were set back today when a committee from St. Paul's Cathedral, Fifth avenue and Craig street, appeared before the county commissioners' meeting and entered formal protest.

Headed by the Rev. William J. McMullen, rector, the committee told the commissioners that location of the $6,000,000 edifice near the Cathedral would be detrimental to services and would interfere with the teaching of school children. Noise would cause greatest offense, it was pointed out.

After hearing the complaints, Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong said:

"We have had similar complaints from residents in another part of that district. It is apparent that people there don't want the new $6,000,000 hall, no matter what happens. One man told us if the hall was built in the Schenley Farms section he'd sell his property for 50 cents on the dollar."

A Town Hall committee, advocating location of the proposed $6,000,000 auditorium on the Osterling site, North Side, has been appointed by the North Side Chamber of Commerce. The site, at the north end of the Ninth street bridge, has the approval of eight North Side and North boroughs civic associations.

Gifts of clothing, bedding and shoes to needy residents of Brookline and environs began today under the auspices of the Brookline Board of Trade, Boy Scouts and Volunteers. Smith, of the Pittsburgh Fire Department, after a conference with officials of the Volunteers of America.

Headquarters for the collection of clothing in Brookline is Engine House, No. 57, Brookline boulevard and Castlegate avenue. The appeal and distribution will continue indefinitely, according to Board of Trade officials.

PLAN TO MERGE 3 BOROUGHS UP TONIGHT

Conference on Crafton, Ingram, Thornburg Project Scheduled; Benefits Cited

Recommendations on a proposal that Crafton, Ingram and Thornburg be consolidated into a single borough, will be made tonight at a final meeting of 15 representatives of each municipality, M. W. Glover, secretary, announces. The meeting, to be attended by officials of each borough, will be held in the home of George Hardy, 211 Noble avenue, Crafton.

Under consideration for more than a year, according to Glover, the project will be presented to the councils of the three boroughs if the action tonight is favorable.

SEE GREAT BENEFIT

Proponents of the plan, Glover points out, feel the communities would benefit greatly were they under one government, and would be entitled to more privileges in the Metropolitan plan if annexation occurs.

In the event the recommendations are favorable, councils of the respective communities have the power to call special elections to vote on the matter.

If the vote carries, according to Glover, the consolidation will then go into effect. The burgess of the oldest borough, would, no doubt, he said, be appointed burgess of the newly formed municipality. If one borough voted the proposition down, the two others might merge.

BETTER SCHOOLS RESULT

Glover said:

"Ingram and Thornburg now have no high schools. Students are sent to Crafton High and tuition paid that school. Under consolidation school taxes and tuition paid to Crafton could go to make the institution one of the finest in Western Pennsylvania. Many other economical advantages are to be considered in this light."

'Number' Sales on School Property

Alleged sale of "numbers" in a store in Sheraden on property owned by the Board of Education was being investigated today by N. R. Criss, vice president of the board, delegated to the duty at a meeting of the board's property and supplies committee last night.

DIRECTOR ERNEST LUNT REHEARSING MENDELSSOHN CHOIR

CHORUS GIVES FIRST CONCERT

The Mendelssohn Choir, of Pittsburgh, under the direction of Ernest Lunt, conductor, is fast shaping into form in preparation for its first concert of the season, to be given November 25, in Carnegie Music Hall. The chorus will present for the first time in America Arthur Piechler's "Sursam Corda."

This work, according to Conductor Lunt, has been received with acclaim in Europe. It is a composition of much difficulty and abounds in modern rhythms, dissonances and idioms, but also contains much meaty substance as well as beautiful melodies. It is a departure from the standard oratorios and will afford an excellent opportunity to judge the modern idea in this branch of musical art.

On the same program will be a modern composition by the American composer, Dr. Howard Hanson. It is a choral setting to the Anglo-Saxon epic, "The Lament for Beowulf."

Police Business Record--There Wasn't Any

Police at the Center Avenue Station believe a record was established in their precinct during the early hours today, when "business" came to a standstill for more than six hours. Between midnight and 6:30 o'clock this morning not one arrest was made. Nor were any emergency complaints received, and for the first time in many years the sergeant had an easy night.

BANDITS AIDED BY WOMAN BEAT MOTORIST AND SEIZE CAR

VICTIM'S HEAD CUT BY BLOW WITH GUN

Attack Occurs Near Point Bridge; Three Held up in East End, Schenley Farms

Four automobile bandits, one described as an attractive young woman, were being sought by police today in connection with the holdup of Joseph Owens, 38, of Cambridge, O., in West Carson street, shortly before midnight.

Owens told police he was driving his automobile in West Carson street, near the Point Bridge, when another machine containing three men and a woman forced his car against the curb. The two men in the front seat of the bandit car leaped out and confronted Owens with revolvers, forcing him from his machine, according to his story to police.

STRUCK BY ROBBER

They found no money on him, but saw a pair of pliers protruding from his pocket, and, apparently thinking he had a revolver, one of the thugs struck Owens on the head with his gun. The pair then jumped into Owens' car while the other man and the woman accomplice followed in the other.

Passersby took Owens to the South Side Hospital, where two stitches were required to close a cut in his head inflicted by the revolver blow.

BANDIT PAIR BUSY

Police in the Oakland and Squirrel Hill districts were kept busy this morning searching for two men who staged three holdups within a half-hour, one in the East End and the others in the Schenley Farms district.

The pair leaped out of their machine at Murtland and Lang avenues and confronted William Peeler, of 7307 Monticello street. One had a revolver. Peeler called for help and the pair fled.

They were next reported at Bayard and Melwood streets, where they held up David A. McLay, of the King Edward apartments, in front of the apartment building. McLay was robbed of $3 and valuable papers. Men believed to be the same pair also robbed Roger M. Currier, of 4725 Wallingford street, of $1, at Neville street and Ellsworth avenue. They returned a check they took from his pocket.

HOLDUP SUSPECT HELD

Ralph Mortoralli, 22, of 152 Mayflower street, is held as a suspect in the $300 holdup several weeks ago of an alleged clearing house numbers headquarters in Ross street, Wilkinsburg, East End police said.

Mortoralli's arrest was caused by William Culgen, of 192 West street, Wilkinsburg, who said he recognized him as one of the bandits.

"Hans," the Donkey, and Milk-White Pigeons That Take Part in Passion Play

DONKEY FILLS PASSION ROLE

"Hans," the donkey who has traveled many miles with the "Passion Play," now being given at the Syria Mosque, occupies an important place in the cast, being the only animal member.

Not many people think of a donkey as having much, if any, intelligence. "Hans," as he runs around the field, overjoyed at his freedom, braying his delight at being able to feast on good, green grass once again, is a living refutation to this fallacy. This donkey recognizes his own entrance music, takes the stage and when he has completed his act, exits of his own accord.

Does this actor like to have his picture taken? Yes, if he can have the camera afterwards. However, this latter matter is up to the photographer.

"Hans" is a great favorite among the members of the cast, being rivalled only by a flock of snow white pigeons, but he doesn't seem to mind, as the pigeons can't eat lumps of sugar.

Denies Drinking Two Gallons of Rum Weekly

Admitting that his bootlegger had made regular deliveries, Thomas Cox, 5125 Harriet street, denied he ordered and consumed practically alone from one to two gallons of liquor each week, as charged by his wife, Mrs. Ida M. Cox, 3302 Iowa street, Schenley Heights, at the hearing of his divorce suit in Common Pleas Court.

Mrs. Cox, contesting the action before Judge W. Heber Dithrich, denied the charge of desertion and declared she had left their South Braddock avenue home because of his excessive drinking. She alleged, and Cox denied, that he had beaten her. They were married September 28, 1921, and separated February 28, 1927.

SIX IN TRAFFIC CRASHES HURT

David Fisher, 62, of 541 Dixon street, was in West Penn Hospital today with injuries suffered yesterday when a truck in which he was riding was struck by a street car in Penn avenue near Thirtieth street.

Cut and bruised in a crash near Steubenville, while returning from the Pitt-Ohio football game, Ben Rothman, 21, of Pittsburgh, and John J. Mitchell, 19, of Punxsutawney, were taken to a Steubenville hospital. Louis J. Dilda, 19, the driver, and Joseph Riley, 21, both of Pittsburgh, were injured slightly.

ART LECTURER MIXES TOPIC, CITY SIGHTS

Henry Turner Bailey Thrills Audience at Carnegie Hall With Criticisms

By PENELOPE REDD

Carnegie Institute might profit by a contract wth ts guest lecturers to eliminate praise and blame alike of two subjects:—The industrial aspect of the city and the "Cathedral of Learning."

Last night a large and delighted audience was held spellbound by Henry Turner Bailey, poobah of art teachers throughout the nation, in a lecture delivered at Carnegie Lecture Hall. He declared:

Penelope Redd

"The new university is as handsome as a bowl of new lilies shooting up. From every viewpoint it affords beautiful composition. It is written in triple time with its forms arranged in groups of three, like a waltz."

On the other hand in characterizing Burchfield's, "The White Plume" as "the apotheosis of an ugly American railroad town" he compared it with our much discussed city:

"It might be the lower part of Pittsburgh which looks as if every one kept hens."

CRITICISMS BALANCED

Bailey's method of combining poetical allusions, scriptural quotations, anecdotes, alliterative adjectives delivered in syncopated style, and eloquent gesture with hushed diction, balanced condemnation and praise in successive breaths.

The climax of the lecture was a rhapsody on St. Francis woven around the Michalak painting but the folks were brought safely home in Henry Turner Bailey's peroration on Seyffert's "Portrait of Marion Eckhart," a painting that might well symbolize America's sweetheart.

'HUSBAND' HELD IN SWINDLE

The federal grand jury indicted John W. Wesley, 30, alias John C. Chapman, on a charge of using the mail in scheme to defraud, in which he is alleged to have obtained more than $20,000 from Mrs. Jean Carroll, of Grandview avenue, McKeesport.

While he was said to have posed as an unmarried man, engaged in the real estate business in California, and son of wealthy parents in Los Angeles, he met Mrs. Carroll, widow of a war veteran, and the acquaintance culminated a wedding ceremony last December in Greensburg.

Letters received by Mrs. Carroll from Wesley during their "engagement" resulted in the fraud charge being investigated by the grand jury. He had been married at Crown Point, Ind.

Three months following the marriage ceremony Wesley disappeared with money derived from stocks and other property sold by Mrs. Carroll, it was said.

Two months ago he was arrested in Jackson, Mich. He is being held in county jail here in default of $10,000 bond.

John W. Orton, serving a 15-year sentence in the state penitentiary for swindling women of savings, was said to be the father of Wesley.

Ross Twp. Zoning Decision Pending

Members of the Ross Township Board of Zoning Appeals last night withheld decision in the case of Richard Steirheim, who planned to erect a four-family apartment house at Forrest avenue and Klemont street, near the Bellevue borough line. QUIZ SUSPECTS IN DAMAGE SUIT

Allegheny County detectives today continued to aid Youngstown, O., detectives in rounding up local residents alleged to have been paid to testify in a $200,000 damage suit in Youngstown.

At the request of District Attorney Ray Thomas, of Mahoning County, local police took George Fenton, said to be a private detective, to the office of District Attorney Andrew T. Park yesterday. After questioning, Fenton was released. Park today announced several other persons would be brought in for questioning.

WHEN CHILDREN CRY

CHILDREN often cry for no apparent reason. Many times we can't guess what is wrong. The crying may mean a touch of colic; the little bowels may be sluggish—or some other upset. It may mean any of the common little ailments that children suffer. To bring quick comfort to your little one, give a few drops of Castoria. Most upsets of children are soon soothed away by this pleasant-tasting remedy that children all love.

In five million modern homes, Castoria is a mother's first thought when a child is out of sorts, feverish, cross, doesn't eat right or sleep right. When bad breath, coated tongue, or languor tells of constipation. These five million wise mothers know that children should never be given stronger medicines meant for the fully developed systems of grown-ups. Castoria is gentle—safe, yet always thorough and effective for a child of any age. It may be given to the tiniest infant for any little upset. When buying, look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on wrapper.

THESE QUICK TABLETS REPLACE FISHY OIL

Cod liver oil to build up weight, but no fishy taste to McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets

DOCTORS everywhere have long been urging the wider use of cod liver oil. For fighting colds and tuberculosis and building up the body it has tremendous value.

But many people just couldn't take it. The unpleasant taste, the large quantity of fatty oil upset their stomachs. Many children had to have their noses held to get it down. But a way has now been found to get all the benefits of cod liver oil easily and pleasantly!

In two of McCoy's tiny tablets are all the vitamins, all the healthful benefits, of a whole greasy spoonful of cod liver oil. Doctors know this to be true. Extensive tests have proved it. And the Good Housekeeping Institute has tested and approved these tablets too. So now instead of making yourself sick with a dose of nasty, fishy-tasting oil, you simply swallow two tasteless tablets.

Today is the day for you to begin taking them. Remember that they are a food, not in any sense a medicine, and that for best results you must take them regularly and faithfully. Just go to your nearest druggist and get a box of McCoy's now. They'll do you a world of good.

RIVER PILOTS PROTEST LOCK LOCATION AT ROSTRAVER

URGE ENGINEER RECONSIDER SELECTION

Site Dangerous for Tows And Lacks Good Harbor Facilities, They Charge

A letter protesting selection of the Rostraver, Pa., site as location for a new Monongahela River lock to replace Lock No. 4, near Monessen, today was on the desk of Col. G. R. Spaulding, War Department division river engineer at St. Louis.

FAVOR BAMFORD SITE

Filed by Harbor No. 25, Masters, Mates and Pilots' Association of America, here, through the organization's secretary, Harry Black, the letter charges pilots were not consulted as to the safety and ease of maneuvering boats through the location. Personal attention of the engineer is requested before passing on the Rostraver site.

A site at Bamford, with the lock on the Monessen side of the river, was given sanction by the association, but householders and manufacturing plants there contended in times of high water cellars and low points would be inundated. The Dunlevy location, above Lock No. 4, opposite the Bellevernon pump house, the letter says, was recommended, but no action was taken.

LACKS HARBOR ROOM

Lack of harbor facilities, slag banks and other reasons are charged against advisability of the Rostraver location. The letter said in part:

"The Rostraver site is in a badly congested location. It is dangerous in times of high water, and slag banks on both sides of the river at that point leave no locations to tie up boats and tows. Furthermore, the pilots, responsible to the Department of Commerce for the safety of their charges, have little—if any—room in which to maneuver the vessels in and out of the lock. We request that you give this matter your personal attention before passing finally on it."

NEED DREDGING BUOYS

Complaint was also made to Col. Spaulding anent absence of buoys above locations where dredging has been done. Lack of buoys, the complainants point out, creates an added menace to river navigation in the Pittsburgh district.

The association, according to Black, has also written to Col. Arthur Woods, head of the Hoover unemployment committee, requesting immediate governmental action on many dredging, mooring pier and dike removal projects to give employment to rivermen now out of work.

200,000 Pa. Autos Escape Inspection

The report showed that 1,450,000 vehicles were inspected, while more than 1,650,000 are registered by the bureau.

RIPLEY WINNERS OFFER ADVICE

Harry Snyder, of Summerhill, Pa., is richer by $75 today as the result of his efforts in the first Ripley Title Hunt, conducted by the Sun-Telegraph, in which he won third prize.

Harry Snyder

Snyder placed his answers with the contest judges at the eleventh hour. With 32,000 contestants in the field, the judges still had little difficulty in placing Snyder's results as worthy of a place with the select. His answers, filed in unique order, were awarded third place.

He has a bit of sage advice for those entered in the Second Ripley Title Hunt which is now in progress. He said:

"Get an idea and stick to it. The answers can be readily found if one is careful in his search. And more than that, the sections in which the answers are found are valuable in themselves."

The Sun-Telegraph, gratified with the respone in the first hunt, has arranged a second, in which the diligent and resourceful may profit. The rules are easy to understand and follow. And more, the prizes offered, $1,500 worth, are supplemented by the value received from reading the classified advertising which appears with them.

Names of additional winners will be announced tomorrow.

GIRL ACCUSES MAN ON TRIAL IN KILLING

Wilkins, Defendant in Hughes Murder Case, Identified By Grocery Store Clerk

Agnes Ford, clerk in a Wadsworth street grocery store, pointed at Dennis Wilkins, Negro, on trial in Criminal Court for the murder of Precinct Detective James Hughes December 27, and said:

SLAIN IN CHASE

Theodore Perdue, 11, Negro, of 15 Hillside street, today identified Wilkins as one of the men whom Hughes had chased and by whom he was shot.

Detective Hughes was shot a few minutes after the robbery, when he had taken up the chase and confronted three Negroes in Center avenue.

The case is being tried before Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong County. Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk is the prosecutor, while Attorney C. B. Mehard is defending Wilkins. Clunk called Edward Kotewitz and Bob Parker, Negro, customers in the store at the time of the robbery, and they also identified Wilkins, whose home is at 2519½ Wylie avenue. NEW IMPROVEMENT IN RADIO

"You need a new radio," my neighbors told me! "You need a new set of Eveready Raytheon 4-pillar tubes," my radio-man told me. The difference between the two was more than a hundred dollars. I bought the tubes—and now I HAVE a "new" radio.

I listened to the home demonstration at a friend's house the other night. I couldn't wait to try Eveready Raytheon tubes in my own radio. Now I've got the whole neighborhood using them.

Nan Allen, 4727 Lytle St., Hazelwood

I thought my set was just about right. But when Eveready Raytheon tubes came along, my dealer told me to try them. When I did, I learned something—they mean a new era in radio!

Michael Rockot, 1219 Muriel St., S. S. Pittsburgh, Pa.

Thousands have learned the good news . . . about 4-pillar tubes . . . an amazing scientific development. Read some of their enthusiastic comments.

NEW TUBES . . . Eveready Raytheon 4-pillar Tubes . . . with a patented feature that no other tube can use! Four strong pillars anchor their elements in place. Old-fashioned tubes use only two. Four rigid posts . . . one at each corner of a square! It's a well-known engineering principle . . . simple and fundamental . . . but new in radio-tubes. It gives rugged strength, added life, and makes a world of difference in tone!

Free Home-Demonstration

You can learn about 4-pillar tubes from actual experience! You can try them at home, in your radio. Hear the new realism . . . rich, full-voiced, thrilling . . . that they give to even the finest set. You can see the new principle on which 4-pillar tubes are built, making them stronger and better . . . guarding their fragile elements against dangerous bumps and vibration that can sap the tone of a tube.

Hundreds are enjoying this remarkable improvement now . . . profiting from the same free test which you can make at home. Call your radio dealer, and ask for a demonstration. Try a set of these tubes in your radio tonight. Examine them, and see why they are better. It puts you under no obligation. You need buy no tubes unless you want them.

National Carbon Company, Inc., has arranged with Eveready dealers to make this test for you free. No test with electrical apparatus in your dealer's store can show you what 4-pillar tubes really are . . . the first and only important advance in modern tube-design! Don't miss this new thrill any longer . . . if your present tubes are a year or more old, you owe it to yourself to take advantage of this free home-demonstration. Call your nearest Eveready Raytheon dealer now.

Tune in on the Eveready Hour every Tuesday evening over the N. B. C. network

Notice the four strong pillars. With this solid four-square foundation, the many fragile parts in the tube can be assembled with watch-making accuracy—and they can never "wiggle, wobble, jiggle, slip or slide!" When buying one radio-tube, or an entire set, look for—insist on—4-pillar tubes!

In old-fashioned tubes, the many delicate parts have only a two-legged foundation—like the goal-posts on a football field. Two supports instead of four! Jolts, bumps, vibration from dynamic speakers—all can impair their vital accuracy. And that means uncertain results . . . old-fashioned reception!

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Gay Throngs of Society Folks See Plays at Nixon and Alvin

"It's a Wise Child," at the Nixon, and "Street Scene," now in its second week at the Alvin, attracted gay crowds last night. Among those who attended I noticed Mrs. John W. Rhoda wore yellow satin with a coat of lame.

I also saw, and Mrs. Jones was wearing a gown of black tulle, with novel flocking, and a wrap of black velvet with a cape collar edged with ermine.

Yesterday at a wedding in the East, Harkness Edwards, of Pittsburgh, served as an usher. The ceremony took place in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church in New York, and the bride was Rosalie Evans, daughter of Hartman Kuhn Evans, of New York, and the bridegroom, Van Vechten Burger, son of Mrs. Clarence Chew Burger, also of New York. Officiating was the bride's cousin, the Rev. Allen Evans, of Hewlett, L. I., before an embankment of cibotium ferns and crotons. The altar was banked with red and white chrysanthemums and ferns.

Wedding In East

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a medieval gown of white and silver-lame, having long, close-fitting sleeves and a high-waisted bodice with a square neckline. A belt of twisted silver cord encircled the waistline, and the long, full skirt terminated in a scalloped train. A cap of cloth of silver held her veil of tulle, and she carried a sheaf of calla lilies.

Clarence Chew Burger, Jr., served as his brother's best man, and besides Harkness Edwards, the ushers included Paul Bancroft, Jr., Theodore L. Bates, Arthur F. Greer, Otto Harry Gruner, Jr., Lawrence W. Snell, H. Clarkson Scott and Robert Simkins, all of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ordean, Jr., of the North Side, asked $10,000 damages from the City of Pittsburgh for injuries to Mrs. Ordean through a fall on the street, in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court. While crossing Allegheny avenue at Western avenue November 12, 1928, to board a street car, her foot caught in a hole in the roadway, the suit averred.

Wilkinsburg Club Women Tell Others All About Their Pet Peeves

Their pet peeves were aired by Wilkinsburg Women's Club members yesterday and ranged all the way from people who peer over their glasses at you, people who complain of being poor when they are eating three meals a day, and people who say don't for doesn't, to littered streets, necking and being put on the program of the club.

It was a program of unusual caliber, and, strangely enough, the very one who declared herself as being annoyed when given a place on the program, Mrs. James I. McLallen, had the principal part in yesterday's. She contributed a splendidly written paper on "Seeing Through Our Children's Eyes." It is the privilege of parents to help their children make adjustments in this rapidly moving world, she said, and to do it without trying to limit them with the sentimental views of an entirely different generation. Parents are too apt to judge by certain imaginary standards of perfection when they should see through their children's eyes with sympathy and understanding, she stated.

Miss Edna Reitz, dean of girls in the Wilkinsburg high schools, spoke of her three-fold duties, administrative, academic and guidance, and talked a bit about some of the questions brought to her—questions that constitute, not merely school problems, but life problems, which, being met, will better fit the girl for life.

Mrs. James A. Armstrong, State Federation district chairman of the home, spoke of the activities of her department, chiefly American Home Sunday and the art in industry contest, and the afternoon was concluded by an open forum on how much chaperonage young people need. One woman, the mother of four children, suggested that less chaperonage would be needed if the mothers would open their ice boxes, roll back the rugs and move the hands of the clock so that sons and daughters might get sufficient sleep for their classes, and their positions. Close association and better acquaintance with children and their companions were other suggestions in lieu of chaperonage.

The glories and magnificence of ancient jungle-buried but restored Angkor were described by Lucille Douglass, artist and writer, to the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning. Miss Douglass showed both still and motion pictures of the Cambodian capital and its magnificent temples, whose carving "covers them like lace." One of these occupied three and a half square miles. The mystery of the complete disappearance of the Khmers, whose high degree of culture from the fourth to the eleventh centuries, made them the envy of all civilization, has never been explained, the speaker said.

ENDURING FATIGUE IN MID-AFTERNOON IS NOT ADVISABLE

Fagged System Invites Sickness, Inefficiency — Renew Vigor by Eating a Sweet

Medical investigations show that daily fatigue not only makes the system susceptible to illness and organic troubles, but also lessens one's efficiency. Tired people, especially those engaged in offices and stores, have difficulty in concentrating or "keeping awake" on the job.

Most business people find that four o'clock is their zero hour as far as vitality is concerned. To renew vigor at this time, many men and women take a moment to eat or drink something sweet. The results are surprising—almost instantly fatigue is overcome.

Medical men and food scientists who have experimented along these lines say that the renewed vigor is caused by the refined sugar in the food or beverage. Sugar nourishes the body very quickly and when this occurs fatigue disappears.

Americans, it is said, are more subject to business fatigue than any other nationality. However, American workers can quickly get candy, ice cream, cakes and beverages everywhere. A glass of water sweetened with sugar—the "athlete's cocktail"—is reviving. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with refined sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Here's 'Sweetie' for Junior, Doll Lady Tells Marybelle

I am getting so many interesting letters from the little girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity that it's going to be a big task to answer all of them personally, but rest assured that every little girl who writes to me will get an answer.

There is one letter in particular, however, that requires a special answer. It came to me a day or two ago. It was neatly written and signed "Your loving 'Tickletoes' friend." Marybelle Fox, 5907 Howard street, East End, Pittsburgh. In which Marybelle says, among other things:

"Every little girl and boy who gets 'Tickletoes,' I am sure, will be proud of her. Pardon me for putting little boy, but I forgot that boys don't play with dolls."

Now, Marybelle, you are wrong in that conclusion. Little, little boys do play with dolls. I do not approve of big little boys having a dolly for a chum, but it's all right for a little little boy—say under 3 years of age—to have a nice dolly like "Tickletoes" for a sweetheart. If I had a little boy I would much rather that he would have a "Tickletoes" for a chum than a stuffed donkey.

Among the many other little girls who have written to me are Dorothy Schultz, Margaret Campbell, Dorothy Sackett, Thelma Weber, Mary Jean Lehner, Arline Smith, Frances Lyle, Betty Fallon, Joan Boone, June Hershwan, Mary Alice Counihan, Betty Ann Hallett, Dorothy Lynch, Evaline Ruble, Betty McGara, Nellie Lou Schickline and others.

And now just a word about my wonder "Tickletoes." All the little girls who have seen "Tickletoes" can't resist loving her, and naturally they would love her because she's so life-like, and what little girl doesn't love a real live baby? She is the happiest doll you ever saw, dressed elegantly in pink organdy with real stockings, cute little moccasins, rubber panties and a darling cap with lace ribbons on it. Her legs and arms are of rubber and her soft little toes and fingers are just like a real live baby's. She is unbreakable and has three different voices and is 21 inches tall—just about as long as this newspaper page.

Now, if you want a "Tickletoes" for all your very own, to love and to take care of, clip out the coupon, fill it in and send it to your friend.

COAL DEALERS SPEED ORDERS

Ice conditions at present, with such a low stage of water, would present a difficult problem for shippers, industry leaders declare. An increase of 100,000 tons is expected in November reports.

Harpster Reveals Secrets of Play That Has Put Geneva Back on College Football Peak

By HOWARD HARPSTER,
Geneva College Football Coach,
All-America Quarterback at Carnegie Tech, 1928.

It is generally accepted that every position on a football team is difficult and that there are no so-called soft spots wherein a player may achieve glory without putting forth a great amount of effort. The linemen and the backs all encounter certain hardships and troubles, and each is made to look good or bad according to his effectiveness and the degree in which Dame Fortune smiles upon him. But, in the eyes of the fans, the player who has among his duties that of calling the plays and directing his team can look like a genius or a bum quicker than anyone else on the field, with the possible exception of the officials.

Howard Harpster

The football public is fickle and its second guess always is better than the play which the quarterback has just called and which failed to work. Yes, and in the financial world there wouldn't have been quite so many headaches at the time of the market crash had the wise ones been able to make their second guess first.

I am a firm believer in the idea that the quarterback to be successful in cleverly directing his team must have Lady Luck, the breaks and a few more such things on his side.

Take Reasonable Risks

Of course, there are some quarterbacks who could guess all afternoon and still not call the right plays, but these are the exceptions. Others who always are playing the old, dumb and standard game of hitting the line on the first two downs, passing on third and kicking on fourth, wouldn't be helped much by the breaks, either.

But I refer to the quarterbacks who attempt to cross up the opposition and call unorthodox plays when they notice a decided weakness in the defense.

It is said that a person who never has made a mistake never has done anything. It is my contention that a quarterback who does not take occasional chances does not get very far, either, unless his team happens to be a most-stoppable steamroller. By taking chances I don't mean 100 to 1 'shots,' but rather, legitimate risks.

Recently, I witnessed a game between two teams which still were battling each in the fourth quarter with the score 0-0. One of the teams finally made an offensive effort that carried the ball for three consecutive first downs well into the opponent's territory. It was first down on the 25-yard line and the defense had moved in close in an attempt to stop the line-smashing advances the offensive team was making.

Recalls Pass Plays

The quarterback, seeing this, called for a forward pass on the first play and threw a beautiful pass to an uncovered end on the four or five-yard line. The ball went squarely into the end's arms, but he juggled it and finally dropped the ball over the goal line. The play was perfectly called and the pass was accurately thrown, but automatically it became the wrong play to have attempted because the receiver fumbled the ball into the end zone and thus the offensive team lost the ball and its chance to score. The fans immediately put on the usual mayberry act and the critics were most unkind. Had the end merely dropped the ball it would have been grounded on the field of play, but he fumbled it until he dropped it over the goal. The quarterback's fault? Well, hardly!

I remember a very similar situation in the Pitt-Tech game in 1928. With no score having been made by either team, Carnegie made its only sustained offensive gesture late in the third quarter. By means of running plays, the ball was carried for four consecutive first downs on the Pitt 39-yard line.

Play Beats Pitt

The Panther backs moved in very close, and, on first down, we threw a forward pass over their heads for the only touchdown of the game. It was the correct play to call and was "smart" because it worked. But I hate to think how dumb I would have been if Pitt had intercepted the ball or if the receiver had dropped it. The "grandstand" coaches would have said that, because of our successful advance by rushing, we could have gone the remainder of the way by that means and that the pass should not have been thrown. Oh well, Lady Luck said "Yes," so we were "smart." But what if she had said "No?"

I recall very clearly how "dumb" I was on a pass play which was thrown from our own 40-yard line early in the game with N. Y. U., at Forbes Field in 1927. Just as the ball was about to nestle into Jay Sweet's arms for a substantial gain, a N. Y. U. halfback grabbed it from his very finger tips and raced to our five-yard line, from where N. Y. U. scored its first touchdown. Yes, it was the wrong play to have attempted.

But, the next year, on practically the same pass, from even deeper in our own territory, I was "smart" when Rosenzweig caught the ball on the second play against Notre Dame and ran 70 yards. This, of course, was the right play because it worked.

Need the "Breaks"

Football is like anything else. Some days everything goes along fine, and, on others, well, it seems that you just can't save a nickel, and that it didn't even pay to get up.

So when your favorites are down there on the one-yard line with only one down in which to put the ball across that last white stripe and they fail, don't be too hard on them. Who knows but that if they had called a different play they might have fumbled and the opponents, catching the ball in the air, might have run for a touchdown? It has been done.

GALLERIES MAY HAVE AFFECTED JONES

DID THE GOLF galleries do what none of the playing stars had been able to do—beat Bobby Jones? Many veterans of the game think that one of the real reasons for the retirement from competition of that champion of all champions is to be found in the strain under which Jones was placed by the crowds every time he played in a public tournament. Bobby, of course, does not even hint at anything of the kind in making known his withdrawal from the sport in which he has been the world's greatest figure, but those close to him do not doubt that it had considerable to do with his decision.

Bobby Jones

Jones' statement that he had decided to quit the game even before the moving picture proposition came up is borne out by the fact that as early as June of this year, as published in the Sun-Telegraph at the time, some of his intimates expressed the opinion that he would retire from competitive golf at the end of the 1930 season because his growing law practice was demanding more of his time than formerly and because the crowds on the tournament courses were "beginning to get him."

NO HARMFUL EFFECT of the galleries ever was apparent in Bobby's play, nor did he at any time show any outward signs that his being forced to play constantly between lanes of milling thousands was getting on his nerves. According to friends, however, it was a condition that turned into the hardest kind of work for him what had once been a pastime and was at least one of the factors that led to his retirement.

Whatever the cause, the sport world has lost its greatest champion. Jones dominated his game to a greater extent and was farther ahead of his field than any title holder in any other branch of competition, and with all four major championships in his possession he goes out with a record that may not be duplicated for generations. Golf without Jones won't be like golf at all, and yet it is possible to figure that his withdrawal will react as a spur to the sport, inasmuch as the game was approaching a point at which the recognized hopelessness of playing in a tournament in which Jones was an entrant might have tended to discourage competition.

THE LOSS OF the last two games to North Dakota and Geneva marks the first time that Duquesne University has been defeated twice in succession in football during the almost four full seasons of Elmer Layden's coaching regime.

Elmer Layden

The Dukes previously lost a greater number of games in one year than they have dropped this season, as they were downed four times in Layden's first campaign, 1927, but none of Elmer's teams ever before lost two in a row. A victory or a tie separated the defeats at the hands of St. Bonaventure, Geneva, Ashland and Waynesburg in 1927, only one game was lost in 1928, that to Geneva, and last year the Bluffites won all of their games except a tie with West Virginia.

THIS HAS BEEN an extraordinary losing year all around for Pittsburgh's three college football teams. In no previous season since they attained their present standards of gridiron strength did the three slump to such an extent as to win only 14 of their first 23 games, but that's all they have to show for their labors this season. Pitt has won five, lost two and tied one; Carnegie Tech has won four and lost three, and Duquesne has won five and lost three, a combined record of only 14 games won against eight defeats and a tie.

NOBODY LOOKED FOR anything like that when the season was starting. Nobody anticipated that at one stage of the campaign Carnegie would lose three out of four games, and that out of the same number of conests meanwhile Pitt would lose two and be held to a tie in another. Nor was it expected that the Dukes would lose three of their first eight. That's only an example of the surprising extent to which teams in all parts of the country have slipped.

Few expected ever to see the time when Princeton would win only one game in a whole season, but that's what has happened. The Tigers completed their season last Saturday without having won a single game after their victory over Amherst on opening day, Chicago hasn't won a game since it took the first two of the season, Harvard hasn't been on the winning side in any o its last five events, and California has been beaten four times, to say nothing of Bethany's loss of all seven games played. An unusual season, truly.

JIMMY M'LARNIN in the boxing game appears to be very much like Notre Dame in football. When he licks 'em they stay licked for some time, if they're not actually ruined.

The general opinion is that it was his earlier beating at the hands

RICH SHOULD BACK BENEFITS, DREYFUSS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Benefit football games are favored by Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, only when they further the cause of real charity, but Dreyfuss today declared, with much emphasis, that the rich man, and not the poor man, should underwrite these contests for such amounts as would "really bring relief" to the unemployed.

Barney Dreyfuss

It was a coincidence that Dreyfuss had just handed his check to one of the workers for the Welfare Fund when he was asked for an expression on the various benefit games now being arranged. He said:

"With several million men out of work in the country, it is putting the cart before the horse and worse to expect the poor fellow on the street to defray the expense of these contests when the country is full of millionaires and multi-millionaires who could provide a real remedy for the situation if they really wanted to be charitable."

BURDEN ON POOR MEN

"Many a man with not more than $25 he can call his own will feel the urge to buy these tickets when our great, rich nation is overrunning with men of millions who easily could bear the expense of the seats," the baseball magnate continued. "Let the rich purchase the tickets and make donations, and then let the poor man alone, or, perhaps, if the rich gentleman wishes to sit in his luxurious club, have him give his tickets to the man of less means.

"Right here in Pittsburgh we have a generous quota of rich men who could help out in the situation if they would loosen up their purse strings.

CRITICIZES METHOD

"I'm for any kind of charity, but I think it should be practical and constructive, and I don't think the present method of handling these benefit games reaches the core of the matter."

Chillysauce

Pie Traynor is in fine condition generally and his eye trouble appears to be much better. The Pirate captain is spending a couple of days in Pittsburgh before departing for his home near Boston, where he expects to stay for an indefinite period. Traynor expects to marry early in the New Year.

Rolly Hemsley, Pirate catcher, is in Los Angeles, where he is taking part in some diamond contests. He and Hal Finney are the only members of the Pittsburgh receiving staff, but there may be an important addition within the next week or two.

EXPLANATIONS FOR RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A FISH WHICH SWIMS ON ITS BACK—The African catfish of the Nile (synodontus batensoda) is the only fish having the eccentric characteristic of swimming upside down. As a consequence, this fish has undergone a modification of color, its belly being darker than its back. The ancient Egyptians were aware of the singularity of this fish, which figures frequently in their hieroglyphics. GIL DOBIE'S RECORD—During the years 1908 to 1916, while Coach Gilmour Dobie was mentor of the University of Washington football teams at Seattle, Wash., his teams did not lose a game. In the 61 games played during these nine years, Washington scored 1,928 points to its opponents' 119. Dobie also coached North Dakota Agricultural College (1906-1907) and South Side High School (Minneapolis) in 1903, during which time neither team lost a game.

TOMORROW—GAINED WEIGHT AWAITING DEATH

LOCALS TO FIND CLIFF BATTLES HARD TO STOP

By JESS CARVER.

The already thrice-dented chin of Mr. Elmer Layden's Duquesne University football team (that chin is figurative, you understand) may be clipped again this week. The Dukes play West Virginia Wesleyan, which is another way of saying that the Dukes play Cliff Battles.

Cliff Battles

This Battles person is a football player of parts, with plenty to spare. He can run. He can kick. He can pass, and he can plunge a line. He gave some indication of his powers as he turned in three sparking runs against Waynesburg last week, two of better than 90 yards and one better than 80, for touchdowns.

Wesleyan may not beat Duquesne, but those who attend the ball game may be certain of one thing: they'll look at the best running back that has shown his stuff in Pittsburgh this year, aside from those wows of Notre Dame's. Six foot two inches in height and weighing better than 190—wotta man!

The Dukes began preparations for the game yesterday with a brisk drill on the Bluff. Disappointed as the squad was over the tough defeat at the hands of Geneva, the ball players went to work with a fine show of enthusiasm. They'll need it to beat this Bobcat club—and Cliff Battles.

TARTANS DRILL

Any ideas that may have found resting place in the cocos of Carnegie Tech's footballers that this Temple University team, which the Skibos are to face at Franklin Field Saturday, were very rudely dislodged Saturday as Temple pushed poor Lafayette all over the ball field.

Beating Lafayette 46-0 isn't so much of a trick, at least this year, but beating any major team on a muddy, sloppy field by such a score is something over which to pause.

Coach Bob Waddell began heavy work for the game yesterday, putting his Tartans through a long and arduous workout. The workout was so tough that even Joe Morbito broke a sweat. That is some sort of a record. All orbito usually does is put the Black Hand sign on poor Maxie Hannum. Yesterday he tore things up, and I don't mean the turf.

LINEUP IN DOUBT

Waddell would make no crisp cracks regarding his prospective lineup. He isn't certain how he'll arrange his line or who'll be working in the backfield. It all depends on how the various young men who are fighting for jobs click this week.

The game has been transferred from Temple Stadium to the University of Pennsylvania's home grounds, Franklin Field.

Cochran Sets Pace For Hoppe, 600-255

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Welker Cochran, of Hollywood, the challenger, took a wide lead over Willie Hoppe in their 3,600 point match for the 18.1 balkline billiards title yesterday, winning both the afternoon and the evening blocks. Cochran led today by 600 to 255.

Cochran, who had won the first block, 300 to 213, with an unfinished run of 19 in the tenth inning, found the balls in excellent position when he went to the table last night. He clicked off 50 more caroms before missing. After a run of three in his second inning he put together a cluster of 127 highest of the match so far, in his next attempt.

HERRERA STOPS JOE GLICK IN SEVENTH ROUND

VICTIM'S FAKE FOUL CLAIM IGNORED

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Motor Square Garden's first standing room crowd in several seasons, climaxing an unbroken series of successful shows, last night saw Tony Herrera, Mexican lightweight, of Chicago, knock out Joe Glick, veteran New Yorker, in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-round windup.

Only decisive action by Referee Al Grayber saved the bout from culminating in a fiasco as Glick, badly weakened and doubled up and holding throughout the final session, finally went down under the impact of a solid left to the pit of the stomach, claiming a foul and rolling over in agony, or feigned agony. Grayber, satisfied, as were the ringside spectators, that the blow was fair, did not hesitate a moment, but began to count out the fallen fighter.

PUTS ON ACT

Glick made no attempt to get up, although he was fully conscious and knew what was transpiring. At the end of the count he went through the act and waited for his seconds to help him to his corner and there his handlers called for the commission doctor to examine him. Fully five minutes later, they continued the bluff by carrying Glick out of the ring to his dressing room.

It all was as bald a piece of pretending as any boxer ever tried to put over. Knowing that he was doomed to a knockout defeat in his condition, Glick deliberately gambled on catching the referee napping and claiming foul on the body blow. However, the punch was out in the open where everyone could see it and the trick didn't work.

DOWN IN SECOND

The bout was a return battle, the pair having fought to a draw in the opening show of the season at the Garden, with Glick really having the better of the going due to a big early lead. Last night, Tony was in better condition, and, after the first round, in which Glick was the aggressor and dropped him for a count of one with a left hook to the head, there was little doubt as to the ultimate victor.

In the second round, a right to the jaw dazed Glick and made him hold and a zooming left followed that tumbled him for a count of nine. He got up groggy, but managed to last through to the bell.

Thereafter it was all Herrera with the exception of an even fifth round, in which Glick effectively countered Tony's leads throughout. Just as the bell rang, Joe landed a low right to Tony's hip.

LEFT FINISHES BOUT

The seventh round lasted only 1 minute 51 seconds. Tony tore out of his corner at the bell and belted Glick fore and aft with both fists until he weakened him and made him hold on. Finally, in desperation, Glick, dazed and half doubled up, tried to fight back, and Tony sent home the pulverizing left hook to the stomach, and Glick hesitated, dropped his hands about his body and took the long chance of finding a lucky and easy way out. The alertness of the referee foiled him.

Glick weighed 138½ pounds, and Herrera 136¼, at 3 p. m.

The eight-round semi-final was a messy affair, in which Eddie Brannon, Negro, of the Hill, 138, defeated Ray Newton, of Mansfield, O., 137½, all of the way. He dropped Newton for counts of nine in the fourth and fifth rounds and should have finished him. Newton, returning to the ring after a long layoff, showed little inclination to fight, while most of Brannon's efforts were confined to holding with his left hand and working the right in a succession of rabbit and kidney blows.

BECKER STOPS NOLL

The best bout for action was the second, in which Al Becker, of Sheraden, 157½, rallied after a tough first two rounds against Marcus Noll, southpaw Negro, of Detroit, 152, and won the remainder of the way in a great slugging brawl until he finally sent Noll down for the full count after 1 minute 58 seconds in the sixth and scheduled last round.

Both were fouled in the second round and Becker also was down for a count of eight just before the bell. In the fourth, Becker was down again, for nine, but came back to floor Noll three times, for counts of eight, eight and nine, and he dropped him again for one, nine and three in the fifth, the bell saving Noll, and he finally polished him off in the sixth with a left to the jaw.

STEVE SENICH WINS

Steve Senich, of Homestead, 127, won over Johnny Haggerty, of Lawrenceville, 127¼, subbing on short notice for Johnny Montebano, of Braddock, in the six-round opener.

Al Grayber and Joe Keally divided the refereeing, L. K. Meininger and Frank Brown were the judges and Tommy Grant and Norman Borland the timers. Harry Klaas did the announcing.

JONES REMAINS AMATEUR TO ST. ANDREWS

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Bobby Jones' status as an amateur golfer, in the opinion of Secretary Henry Cullen, of the Royal and Ancient, will not be affected by his making of films.

"Mr. Bobby Jones is an ordinary member of the Royal and Ancient Club, having paid his entrance fee and his annual subscription," said Cullen today. "I do not consider that the making of films has any effect whatever on a golfer's position as an amateur, and so far as I I can gather, Mr. Jones has definitely stated that he is not becoming a professional. There has been no time to consider the matter in committee, and I am only expressing my own opinion."

Syracuse Satisfied With Len Macaluso

SYRACUSE, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—"If Colgate University says a man is eligible, that is good enough for us."

That was the official reaction of Syracuse University as expressed by George B. Thurston, graduate manager of athletics, to the charge published in the New York Herald-Tribune that Leonard Macaluso, Colgate fullback, was playing his fourth season of varsity football.

Sport Vignettes

If there is such a thing as poetic justice, Vic Burrone, a fighter, merely got what was coming to him when he was poisoned eating cream puffs . . . It doesn't require much stretching of the imagination to picture a cream puff being poisoned by a fighter, either. . . . Tom Keen, who put on the dog races at New Kensington this year, postcards from Tucson, Ariz., where he is doing the same thing now.

Knute Rockne has good cause to begin fearing Northwestern in Notre Dame's clash next Saturday, for the Wildcats are the class of the Big Ten and have plenty of stuff with which to provide trouble and they are accustomed to making matters tough for the Irish. . . . Across a period of three straight years, 1924, '25 and '26, Notre Dame was held to 13-6, 13-10 and 6-0 victories by Northwestern, and, last year, the latter team cracked under a heavy schedule to lose, 26-6 . . . Northwestern's team is a bigger and heavier one than Notre Dame's. . . . Both have turned in seven victories and have not been beaten or tied this year. . . . This is the closing game on the Northwestern slate, while Notre Dame must follow it up with tough meetings with Army and Southern California.

Jess Carver dug up the crack somewhere that the Scottish football yell is "Get that quarter back!" . . . Three former world heavyweight champions are expected to referee bouts on a card in Los Angeles next Monday night to raise funds for an annual newsboys' dinner . . . They are Jack Dempsey, Jim Jeffries and Jess Willard.

Bobby Jones' quitting of tournament golf at the height of his fame is akin to Gene Tunney's stepping out from under the world heavyweight championship . . . There's no one in sight to take his place . . . However, it's a smart duck who knows when to leave the water . . . Quitting now, Bobby always will be remembered as a champion of champions; if he were to hang on until the up-and-coming youngsters began to take his measure, future generations would remember him merely as just another player of the game.

Somehow, the Notre Dame team won't look the same for the remainder of the season without Jumpin' Joe Savoldi in there at fullback . . . When the People's Choice "withdrew" from the university yesterday, he took a lot of the color and appeal of the greatest team of the year with him.

WILSON DEFIES M'TIERNAN

Jack Wilson, North Side middleweight, who recently flashed a fine comeback to his best form in decisively defeating Jack Tracey at Motor Square Garden wants to fight Buck McTiernan of Swissvale. And he wants to fight him in the worst sort of a way.

Jack Wilson

Jackie boxes Georgie Chambers, of the East End, in the eight-round semi-final to Buck's bout with Sergt. Sammy Baker at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, and, if he wins over Chambers, who has been doing some fine winning himself lately, he wants to be considered in line to box McTiernan, provided Buck takes over Baker.

If necessary to land the match, Wilson said at the Garden last night, he stands willing to donate his end of the purse to the fund for the needy unemployed, an offer that merits serious consideration.

Between Rounds

Nick Perlick, McKeesport heavyweight of several years ago, is coming back. He has gone under the management of Bunn Buntach, who also handles Buck McTiernan and George Panka, and likely will make his first start along the return trail as the opponent of Walter Gallagher in the second bout at the Moose Temple, Friday night. Joe Trippe, of Rochester, N. Y., and Jimmy Kelly, of the North Side, top this bill, with Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, and Benny McArthur, of McKeesport, in a return bout in the semi-final.

Long's Sport Comment

of McLarnin that made Al Singer fall so quickly against Tony Canzoneri the other night. It not only rendered him less able physically to "take it," but it left with him a disquieting memory of an unpleasant experience, and the fear of a repetition hurt his fighting spirit and put him under a mental handicap. The McLarnin match looked like a suicidal one when Singer made it, and that's what it proved. He had everything to lose and nothing to gain by it.

Jimmy McLarnin

SINGER IS ONLY one exhibit on a growing list that shows considerable is taken out of any fighter who gets a beating from the hard-fisted McLarnin. Sammy Mandell never amounted to much after the lacing he took in his second meeting with Jimmy, and he went out in the first round when he met Singer for his title, just as Singer himself did later in his bout with Canzoneri. Sid Terris was another to go down hill after feeling the force of McLarnin's punches. Still another was Joe Glick, whom Tony Herrera knocked out here last night, and you might add also Ruby Goldstein, Ray Miller and Phil McGraw.

PITT HAD ALMOST 5,000 rooters at Columbus last Saturday, a rather remarkable turnout considering the fact that bulletins from the Ohio capital brought information of rain there Friday afternoon and night and Saturday morning, discouraging many of those who had planned to go by auto.

An Ohio State official after the game declared that Panther rooters stuck with their team through a losing battle better than any rival rooting delegation ever did before under adverse circumstances on Ollo's field. That's something in which Pitt may take pride. The Blue and Gold did not come out without honor, even though the game was lost. There is always respect for the loser that goes down fighting.

THE PANTHERS AND the Buckeyes will not meet next year, but relations are most friendly and there is every reason to hope for a resumption at a later time and perhaps a long period of uninterrupted rivalry. The fact that Pitt drew 49,908 fans on a rainy day is a tribute to the drawing power of the Panthers and their popularity as a visiting attraction in Columbus, and there is no question that Ohio State always will be a big card here.

Last year's Pitt-Ohio State attendance in Pittsburgh was hurt by rain, and unfavorable conditions kept down the crowd in Columbus when the teams played there this season. With fair weather on both occasions—including a bright Friday to encourage travel—the two games probably would have drawn capacity crowds. This tends to show that a real rivalry exists because of the location of the institutions.

Joe Savoldi

A RISE TO fame may be rapid, but the descent to obscurity may be equally swift. After a drab start of Notre Dame in 1928, when he played only three minutes during the entire season, Joe Savoldi gradually developed until this year he became one of the most powerful parts of a great football machine. Only 10 days ago he was one of the season's gridiron standouts and was headed almost unrivaled for all-America fullback distinction, but today finds him forced to withdraw from college on account of a secret marriage and a subsequent divorce action. When the season ends, instead of being a national idol among the college greats of the year, he will be out of football altogether or lost in the professional ranks, where they quickly lose their popular appeal. In a football sense, it is a heavy loss to Notre Dame, one that lessens the team's chances of getting past Northwestern, Army and Southern California undefeated, but clearly the winning of football games is not the first aim of the South Bend school.

JACKETS GIVEN 'LAST CHANCE' BY SCHOOLEY

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Unless the Yellow Jackets show greatly improved form and turn in a victory or two in their next two games—at Syracuse tomorrow night and against Buffalo here Thursday night—Roy D. Schooley, president-manager of the local International League hockey squad, will institute a radical shakeup and make several changes in the personnel of the local squad.

Although not at all satisfied with the performances of the Jackets in losing to London and Buffalo in their first two starts, Schooley does not want to be too hasty in condemning his young stalwarts, and has decided to give them two more chances to make good.

DEMANDS WINNER

"I am convinced that we have some good material on the local squad," the local club prexy said today, "but we can't wait too long for this material to develop. I don't want to act on snap judgment, but it seems to me that four games are enough to permit any team to show what it can do. The first two games indicate that the defense will require some bolstering, but the front lines also are open to criticism. Obviously, no team, regardless of the strength of its defense, can win a hockey game if it cannot score.

"I am determined to give Pittsburgh another winning team, and if the present combination is unable to win I will have to supplant many of the present Jackets with players capable of producing Pittsburgh victories."

According to members of the local squad, the officials contributed much to their defeat at the hands of Buffalo Saturday. The Jackets were handed 15 penalties in this fray, and at no time did they have six men on the ice for more than a three-minute stretch.

EXPERIENCED MEN SOUGHT

Schooley, however, does not intend to take any action regarding the penalty bouquets. "I want to have a team so strong that it can win despite poor officiating," was his only comment.

The Jackets' president already has lines out for some new talent. It is understood that older and more experienced players are being sought.

With the local puckmen fighting to save their places on the team and their Buffalo rivals fighting to add to their victory string, the game here Thursday night should produce plenty of savage battling. Windsor met the same fate as did the locals when opposed to Buffalo, and no goals in two games speaks well for the visitors' defense of Lederman, Murray and Goalie Taucher. The visitors starting front line of Huard at center and Gross and Godin at the wings, the latter a former Ottawa star, will give the local guardians plenty to worry about.

Most of the Buffalo icemen have been playing on the same squad five or more years, and their team play is of a high order.

STATE RESUMES DRILLS

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Although it snowed from dawn to dusk here yesterday, nothing the weather could do could keep the Penn State football squad from putting through its regular practice. A driving rain fell throughout the drill. For the first time in two weeks, Edwards, veteran wingman, took his place at right end. Edwards has been on the sick list on account of an infection. Penn State's next opponent is Pittsburgh.

ROBINS PLAN SERIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—The Brooklyn Robins will play a five-game exhibition series in Havana next spring, starting March 24, under arrangements concluded today by Brooklyn officials. Three games probably will be between two teams picked from the Brooklyn squad, the other two games the Robin regulars will meet a Cuban team.

PROS SEEK SAVOLDI

JOE REJECTS $5,000 OFFER

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Joe Savoldi, star fullback of Notre Dame, who withdrew from the university following an investigation into his suit for divorce, announced today that he will not play professional football this year.

Savoldi told interviewers that he will play for his former coach, Knute Rockne, in three charity games this fall in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Savoldi is reported to have turned down an offer of $5,000 to play professional football for the rest of the season.

Savoldi secretly married Audrey Koehler, of South Bend, in April, 1929, before he had gained the football fame that now goes with his name. The secret held until November 1, when his attorney, the same justice of peace who had married him, filed suit on Savoldi's behalf for a divorce. The football star's friends immediately urged him to reconsider his suit, fearing his expulsion from Notre Dame, and he withdrew the suit. Some of them told friends, and the friends gradually spread the "secret" until it came to the attention of university authorities.

Savoldi admitted his marriage, but insisted he had never lived with his wife and that he would seek an annulment. The university officials investigated the entire case, ordered Savoldi out of the Drake-Notre Dame game Saturday, and yesterday announced that the big star had withdrawn. They refused to comment on the case further except to admit his withdrawal was the result of disciplinary action prompted by his suit for divorce.

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK,
Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 62

By winning the fourth game under such dramatic conditions, I did not think it possible for the Cubs to carry off the title, for to do so they had to take the remaining game in Philadelphia and two straight in Chicago.

Connie Mack

Moreover, I did not think it possible for the National Leaguers to put up much of a fight in the fifth game after they had found an eight-run lead on Saturday too small for them to hold.

Such a tragic defeat crushes the last vestige of spirit out of a team. It feels it cannot defeat super-men.

The combatants rested on Sunday, as Philadelphia is the only city, except Pittsburgh, in the majors where outmoded blue laws still exist and where no baseball may be played on the Sabbath.

While we were topping the Cubs, three victories to one, I again had a pitching problem for the fifth game. I had used Ehmke in the first game, Earnshaw in the second and third and Quinn in the fourth and had run out of right-handed starting pitchers, while I did not care to start either Grove or Walberg at this stage of the series.

During that idle Sunday, I did a lot of thinking, and had almost resolved to use Earnshaw again.

STARTS EHMKE AGAIN

I never gave Ehmke a thought, as he always needed a 10-day rest interval between his games. On my arrival at the park Monday morning, the first man to greet me was Ehmke.

"Who is your pitcher?" he inquired.

"I have not yet fully decided; in fact, I cannot make up my mind," was my answer.

"Well, I feel all right again, and, while I don't want to change your plans, I am willing to go in," he said.

This solved my problem and I told him to get ready, having in mind to let him go as far as he could and then relieve him.

I never thought Ehmke could go nine innings and wasn't sure he could go one inning. So, when Ehmke started to warm up, I had Walberg in the bullpen unlimbering his arm at the same time so that in the event of Ehmke not being able to get started I could rush Walberg in to pitch to the second Cub hitter.

While Ehmke got by the first three innings, it was plain to see that he was not the pitcher he had been on opening day.

RELIEVED BY WALBERG

His fall came in the fourth inning, after he had retired his first two opponents. He suddenly buckled. Cuyler doubled and Stephenson walked. Grimm singled and scored Cuyler, while Taylor followed with another single and Stephenson was in. Here I waved Ehmke out of the game and motioned for Walberg to come in. This lefthander quieted the storm by fanning Malone.

Walberg pitched five and one-third innings to finish the game and gave a display of airtight flinging that always will go to his credit. In this time he blanked the Cubs with two hits and never let an opponent get as far as second base. He crushed six rivals on strikes. His work at all times was superb.

Yet Pat Malone all the time had been irresistible. He mowed down the Athletics inning after inning. The two runs to the credit of the Cubs looked as big as mountains.

We tried to get one of our familiar rallies under way, but, at the end of the eighth, the Cubs still were leading, 2 to 0, with only two skinny hits to the credit of our sharpshooters.

HAAS' HOMER TIES SCORE

As Malone was turning our hitters back in the eighth inning, I could see myself packing my grip and hurrying to the North Philadelphia Station for a second trip to Chicago.

We were in no mood for this trip, I can tell you.

I was thinking that I would start with Grove in Chicago when our half of the ninth came. I sent Walter French up to bat for Walberg and he fanned. When he came back to the bench he said:

"That fellow has everything."

I don't know whether Walter meant that remark for me or not, but I felt sure when he did say it there would be no rally.

French had no more than made this crack when Bishop hit a terrific single to left. This hit seemed to electrify the whole team. Faces started beaming and the players whooped it up. During the pennant season they had pulled many a game out of the fire.

Everything depended on Haas, who connected with the second pitch and cannonaded it over the right field wall, the home run tieing the score. Mayor Mackey ran out on the field and embraced Haas. Players and spectators went wild. What a scene!

With the score now even, nothing but a victory would satisfy us.

MILLER'S HIT WINS

When Cochrane went out, it looked like extra innings, but we felt we would win eventually.

We were almost satisfied with a tie in nine innings, as we had Grove primed for extra innings.

As it turned out, nine innings were enough.

Simmons hit a savage drive to right center. It looked as if the ball would go over the wall and end the game, but it struck the top of the scoreboard at a point that was several feet higher than the fence and stayed in the park for a two-bagger.

In alarm, Joe McCarthy ordered Foxx to be purposely passed.

That brought up Bing Miller, whose hitting had decided the opening game. The count was two and two on Bing when he blistered a Malone pitch to the scoreboard and Simmons galloped home with the run that made us champions of the world.

State Harriers Cop National Crown

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Striding over the rain-drenched hills and dales in near record time, Clark Chamberlain, 20-year-old Michigan State harrier, yesterday won the intercollegiate varsity cross-country championship run over the Van Cortlandt Park course.

As Chamberlain covered the soggy six-mile course in time only 13 seconds short of the record of 13:06, Penn State's well-balanced quintet of runners regained the team championship. Finishing second, third, fifth, ninth and fifteenth, the Nittany Lion harriers easily conquered the best of 19 other college teams to win their fourth intercollegiate title in five years with a total of 29 points.

Sales Effort Earns New Records

—By B. C. FORBES—

IT IS REFRESHING these days to take trips away from the financial world, where they handle pieces of paper, and visit factories and other plants, where they produce the things which give us modern civilized life. It is especially refreshing to visit executives who are succeeding in driving their business ahead of even last year. There are such. I discovered this both in Detroit and Toledo, notwithstanding that these cities have been hurt by the falling-off in the motor industry.

Mr. Forbes.

THE ACHIEVEMENTS of one concern will particularly interest executives, sales managers and salesmen all over the country. October was the best month the Air-Way Electric Appliance Corporation, of Toledo, having branch offices in 200 cities and employing about 4,000 salesmen, has ever had in its history. Let Pratt E. Tracy, youthful, forceful, enterprising president, tell how this record has been achieved. He said:

"Our business touched bottom in July. We made up our minds to lick the depression. And we have licked it. We have licked it without reducing prices, without increasing commission rates, without any artificial stimulus whatsoever.

"We have done it solely by creating the right spirit throughout our working forces. Salesmen who used to work six or eight hours a day, are now working 10 to 12 hours. Naturally, by greatly increasing the number of housewives called on, they are able to sell more electric cleaners. You would be astonished to know how many of our men, by working enthusiastically long hours each day, have earned $1,000 a month or more.

"New York exceeded its October quota by 40 per cent. Our Philadelphia branch is having the best of its eight years' history. The Southwest zone, comprising Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, is breaking all records. There are practically no poor spots on the map.

"Our cash business is approximately 45 per cent of our total, almost the best ever recorded, and our collections on fully 100,000 deferred-payment accounts are as satisfactory as we have ever enjoyed.

"Our men have become inspired by the spirit of crusaders. We at headquarters believe we understand salesmen because every executive, regardless of his previous experience, had to start with us as a doorbell ringer. Even a former college president and a former sales manager of an automobile company had to qualify with us as bell ringers."

PRESIDENT W. F. TANT, of the Silent Automatic Corporation, Toledo, has also been able to make a wonderful showing this year by combining brains with sterling work. Foreseeing that the boom would end, Tant evolved an additional line, a low-priced product, and this foresight has kept the entire force working full blast—not a man has been laid off. He said:

"We were told by so-called business leaders that it would be useless to plan for more sales in 1930 than we have secured last year. However, instead of cutting our sales force and our advertising expenditures, we budgeted an increased amount of everything pertaining to sales promotion—our advertising expenditures have been 10 per cent greater than last year.

"If a larger number of corporations had less cash assets, the managements would have to get to work and put in a full day's work each day and every day—I don't mean three or four hours—planning and working as they did earlier in their existence when they probably had to hustle to get their payrolls together. This, coupled with the suggestion that they declare extra cash dividends at this time to their stockholders who, in turn, would put the money in circulation by buying things they really want, would undoubtedly have the effect of getting business under way much quicker."

REMEBER, IF you try, you may; if you don't, you won't.

Labor Saving Problems Old, Says Survey

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

FEAR THAT THE development of modern machinery will materially accentuate the problem of unemployment is far from being new. Much has been heard of the danger that increased industrial efficiency may permanently put a large share of the population out of work, but this danger has existed for nearly a century and the problem has always been solved.

A survey of industrial progress during the past 75 years, as reported in the anniversary number of the Iron Age, reveals that over-production, idle manufacturing capacity and technological unemployment were discussed in every bar and livery stable back in 1870. The review shows that every generation has its apex of optimism and its nadir of gloom.

When we see men thrown out of work by an improvement in an individual industry, it is easy to forget that just such improvements have been responsible for the great changes which have taken place in the living conditions of all classes. Not so many years ago workers in steel mills in this city labored under a 12-hour working day. The abolition of this system can be laid at the door of increased efficiency.

Progress Slow

IT MUST BE ADMITTED, however, that industry is slow in passing the benefits of machinery on to labor. Each change is accompanied by individual hardships which are only corrected by the passage of time. Progress in improving wages and working conditions does not go forward in a straight line. But in its own meandering way it does move on toward the goal of better things.

Changes in industry have made possible the gradual reduction of working hours, the increase of wages and the lightening of many industrial tasks. Invention also has been responsible for entirely new industries such as the radio and the automobile which have taken up the slack in employment caused by changes in other types of activity.

Relentless Cycles

TO RETURN TO THE Iron Age survey, the most surprising fact revealed is the ease with which each generation has succeeded in blinding itself to the relentless gyrations of the business Ferris wheel. When they are up, they feel they will always be up. When they are down, they feel their Ferris wheel has been supplanted by a merry-go-round.

Lacking background, our forefathers had some excuse for looking upon the future as a horrible monster ready to devour their children, rather than a beneficent giant who would lead the children to new heights of accomplishment. But with our knowledge of the past, we have no excuse for such foolish fears. Our background is sufficient, if we use it properly, to enable us to look forward quite clearly to the future.

Depression Creates Cure

THE IRON AGE SURVEY reveals that changes affecting the prosperity of the country do not come unheralded. Like the elephantine outlines in the cigaret advertising, they cast their shadows before. This three-quarter century survey has provided enough points on the curve of past progress to permit projecting it forward. The projection reveals that, as in past depressions, the present one is creating its own cure and that it will serve as a springboard for the next peak.

Most of them established relations with the Bank while residents of Pittsburgh and preferred to continue those relations from their distant homes. Banking by mail is as easy as paying a bill by check. EARLY LOSSES IN STOCKS REGAINED

List Creeps Irregularly Higher After Declining In Sluggish Trading

Further selling in the first hour depressed about a score of issues 2 to 4 points, but these were, in the main, more than regained, as the list crept irregularly higher thereafter. Trading was sluggish.

The stock market has now had a substantial technical rebound after its two-month decline, and a secondary reaction of fair proportions occurred yesterday. It now appears to be in a position to reflect outside developments rather than inside market conditions.

The day's corporate news included announcement of the declaration of the regular stock dividends on Sears-Roebuck, in addition to cash.

The annual dividend rate of United Biscuit was increased from $1.60 to $2.

Wall street was naturally a little uneasy over the grain situation, with a wide-open break in wheat at Winnipeg, and the Grain Stabilization Corporation again making heavy purchases in the Chicago market. The fact that domestic prices were substantially above the foreign markets lent an element of uncertainty to the situation.

It was reported in steel trade circles that some Middle Western producers were advising their customers that current prices cannot be expected to hold after January 1, when increases are planned.

Standard Statistics Company recommended that as a general policy, needs through the winter or early spring months be covered at current prices. It emphasized, however, that it did not look for a sharp or sustained advance at this phase of the movement.

Money was a little firmer. Call money held at 2 per cent officially, but little was available outside at less than 1½, against 1 per cent yesterday. Scattered loan calling was reported.

Improvement in Textile Industry

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Improvement is noted in the cotton and woolen industry in New Hampshire. Nashua Manufacturing Company is operating at capacity. Pacific Mills is stepping up production to capacity and probably will use a night shift. American Woolen is increasing output at its Dover mill. Shoe plants are adding workers.

'Atchison Loadings Under Year Ago

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—During the week ended November 15 the Atchison handled 35,685 freight cars, compared to 40,239 in the corresponding 1929 period.

During the week ended November 14 the St. Paul Railroad handled 34,250 revenue cars, compared with 35,371 in the previous week and 39,237 in the like week last year.

Ceco Manufacturing Reports Sales Up

NEW YORK, Nov. 18. — Net sales of the Ceco Manufacturing Company, makers of radio tubes, for the quarter ended September 30, were $376,115, against $159,068 in the preceding quarter. October net sales were approximately $175,000.

Eastman Kodak Co. Adopts Short Week

ROCHESTER, Nov. 18.—Eastman Kodak Company has adopted the five-day week and about 2,000 men are now employed on that schedule. The plan will prevent reduction of employes, and the management states more men are now employed than last year.

Fabricators Hint At Price Boost

YOUNGSTOWN, Nov. 18.—Several leading steel fabricating interests in the Middle West have urged customers to make early purchases because present price levels are not likely to be extended beyond December 31.

S. H. Levy, member of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, has transferred his membership to Ralph B. Marchall, contingent upon the latter's election to the institution.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 1 to 2 points, with the active positions selling 3 or 4 points above yesterday's closing quotations right after the call. After advancing to 10.98c, December eased off to 10.95c, while May reacted from 11.72c to 11.69c, but the market held fairly steady, with prices ruling a shade above yesterday's closing quotations at the end of the first half hour.

December liquidation was again in evidence and included considerable switching into later deliveries.

Prices at midday were 3 to 6 points net lower with new December quoted at 10.92c and May at 11.64c.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 18.—Cotton, spot quiet; prices higher; American strict good middling, 6.80; good middling, 6.45; strict middling, 6.25; middling, 6.10; strict low middling, 5.85; low middling, 5.45; strict good ordinary, 4.90; good ordinary, 4.50. Sales, 4,000 bales, including 2,200 American. Receipts, 3,000, American 300. Futures closed barely steady; December, 5.83; January, 5.90; March, 6.04; May, 6.16; July, 6.26; October 6.36.

Stock Exchange Topics

Glen Alden Coal Not Likely to Maintain Present Dividend.

Recent selling in Glen Alden Coal on the Curb Exchange has been somewhat of a mystery to "tape" watchers, as the known facts about the company are considered favorable at this time. Although Glen Alden, which absorbed Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre last year, has the lowest production costs of any of the major anthracite companies, and anthracite loadings have held up comparatively well this year, the failure of the company to report earnings has made it impossible to calculate whether or not the dividend rate of $8 a share annually is being earned. The sponsorship of the stock has always been considered of the best, and the failure of this sponsorship to check the decline from 98, where impressive support was maintained for a long time last spring, has suggested the dividend as not likely to hold at its present rate very long.

The Trader in Barrons Weekly says "It is fair to conclude that the backbone of the 1929-1930 bear market has been broken. This is not to say that all of the grief incidental to a major liquidating movement has been seen or that prices of last week necessarily represent the lowest that will be made. The real significance lies in the fact that a decline which has been under way for 14 months and which has raged without terruption for two solid months has finally encountered an obstacle that has effectually arrested its momentum. That obstacle was and is a formidable and tremendous investment demand for securities."

Wall street found the action of Kennecott Copper directors, in maintaining the $2 dividend rate on the company's stock, a source of gratification. The financial community had been disposed to look forward to the meeting of the Kennecott board with some measure of apprehension lest another reduction in the rate of payments be made. Kennecott had been paying dividends at the rate of $8 annually prior to the two-for-one split-up voted last year. Disbursements were inaugurated on the present issue at the rate of $1.25 a share quarterly, but not long maintained at that level. At the spring meeting the rate was reduced to a $3 annual basis, and three months ago it was cut again to the present $2 basis. Thus, in all, Kennecott will have paid out in dividends for 1930 a total of $3 a share.

Despite the poor showing of the annual report released by Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., the amusement shares as a group displayed resistance to reaction which took hold of the general market yesterday. Warner Brothers net for the fiscal year ended August 30, last, was reported at $7,074,621, or fully 50 per cent under the $14,514,628 reported for the preceding fiscal year. After payment of regular preferred dividends, and a total of $8,080,380 on the common stock, the dividend on the latter issue having been omitted at the August meeting, the company showed a final deficit of $1,408,499, or in other words it dipped into accumulated surplus to that extent to cover dividends paid during the year.

A survey of the copper situation as made by a leading stock exchange house discloses that even should the price of the metal be stabilized at 12 cents, very few of the copper producers would be able to earn their current dividends. With the statistical position of the industry admittedly in the worst state in more than a decade, it is problematical whether the current price level can be maintained. Another industry in which efforts at price stabilization are being attempted is steel. A study of prevailing conditions indicates there is little prospect of a marked gain in steel output or demand before next year. Should betterment in the industry really be in the offing with the turn of the year, it would be in keeping with market precedent for a slow but steady advance in steel securities to take place in the immediate future.

According to gossip obtaining rather wide circulation in speculative quarters, one of the larger bear operators whose name was more frequently heard during the 1921 bear campaign than in the declining markets of the last year, has retired temporarily from the field of active operations. This individual, so the story goes, proceeded to cover rather substantial short lines during several days along about the middle of last week. And if the rest of story holds he is understood to believe the present a reasonably good time for a period of hibernation. At any rate, said operator is understood to have headed for the Southland for a short vacation.

Grand Union Sales Show Good Gain

NEW YORK Nov. 18.—The Grand Union Company reported for the five weeks ended November 8, sales of $3,469,422, a decrease of 2.8 per cent from $3,570,002 for the like period last year Sales for the 45 weeks ended November 8 totaled $31,401,151, an increase of 12.7 per cent over $27,856,637 for the corresponding period of 1929.

PAYROLLS CUT, WAGE RATES KEPT UP

Large-Visioned Executives Reduce Working Forces But Retain Old Scales

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—When the dust of prevailing pessimism blows over, analytical investors will take cognizance of the extent to which alert management has capitalized the depression and used it as an occasion for eliminating dead wood from organizations and heightening all-around efficiency. Such quiet adjustments have a vital bearing on corporate profits and their full significance will be reflected affirmatively only after general trade begins to revive.

Mr. Rukeyser

From a human standpoint, it is unfortunate that the reduction in operating expenses has resulted in reduced payrolls. Most large visioned executives have stood out against any cut in hourly wage rates, yet the total income given to labor has been reduced as a result of taking men from payrolls and keeping others only on a part time basis.

WAGES KEPT UP

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation, who has gone far in attuning his corporate expenditures to the new yardstick, informed stockholders that

"General Motors has not reduced either salaries or wages and it is my hope that no readjustment of that character will be necessary. To my mind it is important for industry to appreciate the fact that the prosperity of the United States is founded on a high wage scale. To reduce the wage scale would, in my opinion, not only delay the return of more normal times, but would put a limit, and an unnecessary limit, on the future prosperity of the country."

Long before acute unemployment overtook the country, the Procter & Gamble Company pioneered in improving industrial relationships by offering employes guaranteed employment for 48 weeks a year. This was intended to heighten labor morale and efficiency by relieving men of the gnawing uncertainty which had prevailed.

"We hereby pledge to retain the services of our regular employes just as long as they care to remain in our employ and perform their duties efficiently and satisfactorily."

CAN ALLAY FEARS

It is to be hoped that other employers will join the procession and thus help to break the vicious circle of paralyzing fears.

Lewis H. Brown, sagacious president of the Johns-Manville Corporation, offers this comment:

"Although we may not recognize it, the turning point is near at hand and prosperity is again in the making.

"We are using this period in vigorously making preparations for the era of opportunity that is bound to come."

In spite of a decrease in gross sales and declining prices for products, the International Cement Corporation has kept its profits almost up to the 1929 standard. In explaining this paradox, H. H. Muehlke, secretary and treasurer, pointed out to me:

"The average price realized has been less, but through plant improvements, efficiency and by keeping all our properties in the best possible physical condition, we have secured lower costs and so offset to a large extent the lower prices."

DAILY TRUE STORY

Accident

"If I had a pretty wife, maybe I could get to be vice-president."

Luke Follansbee, behind one of the many rows of tall filing cases, stood stock-still when he heard this the folder of Ajax Hardware Company poised aloft, just as he had lifted it out when the words fell on his ears.

"You've been kicking about slow promotions," Follansbee heard Mrs. Winslow say. "Take a page from Pa's book, marry some pretty little blonde and introduce her to the boss."

"No, thanks." It was Joe Marvin speaking, as Follansbee could tell. "No, thanks. I'd rather not advance so fast in business, and have my wife all to myself, if you get what I mean."

Again Mrs. Winslow laughed. "Oh, well, you're different, Joe," she said. "You aren't so immersed in business that you don't know what's going on outside. What he doesn't know won't hurt him, and it will all be the same in a hundred years."

Play Golf

Follansbee still stood motionless, but the color had left his face. He wanted to go—to get away. He knew well enough that the pronoun "he" they used meant himself, Luke J. Follansbee, vice president and secretary of the Universal Paint Corporation. And yet he wanted to hear more. Besides if he came out from between the row of filing cases they might see him. That would be embarrassing for all of them.

Luke Follansbee finished his work. About 4, when his desk was clear and he sat back, smoking a cigar, just about ready to take up his domestic problem, Mr. Donald Rawlson, president of the corporation, breezed into Follansbee's office, smiling amiably.

"Cleaned up, Luke? Good." he said, "we've time for nine holes before dark, what say?"

They drove out to the country club together and played the nine holes. Rawlson drove him back to the plant, where his car was parked, and left him. Luke Follansbee drove home methodically. He was thinking of what Rawlson had said, that next month would be the hunting season and they ought to take a week up in the woods.

It was the same pleasant, smiling Luke Follansbee who kissed his wife upon his return. He chatted of this and that ing Rawlson at golf and then said:

"By the way, Flora, he wants me to take a week up in the Canadian woods with him; says we are sure to bring back a couple fine bucks."

Goes to St. Louis

Flora's maid reported family sickness and had to leave. Flora complained bitterly at breakfast about it.

"Mrs. Mason has reliable servants. I'll drop off and have her send one up—she knows about what you want," Luke promised.

Flora thanked him prettily that night when he got home. The new maid had come and she was perfection.

When the crisp November days came Rawlson popped into Follansbee's office.

"Say, Luke, after you run out to St. Louis and sign those car works contracts for varnishes, we'll be ready to take a run up to the Lake Mesantic region for a little hunting," he said.

Follansbee went to St. Louis and signed up in his customary businesslike way. He wired his wife when he would be back. This made him smile grimly. He came back a day earlier, but if anyone thinks he sneaked out to his house that night to catch his wife and Rawlson, they are mistaken. He didn't go near his house. He met a young woman, however, in a downtown hotel, in the writing room, and sat talking with her about an hour. The young woman was the new "maid" Follansbee had secured.

Being a maid was part of her job as a clever woman detective.

"Yes," she said, "he was there every night—one night she didn't come back at all. Showed up at noon next day and said she was with her sister."

"Yes, yes, don't bother about those details. How about their conversations?"

"Don't go on that hunting trip—he's going to pretend poor eyesight and mistake you for a deer—they talked it all over."

"Thanks," Luke Follansbee said. When the time came he went up into Canada with Rawlson.

"You take the pond trail and I'll take the ridge, we'll meet at the falls," Rawlson said.

"Sure," said Luke, knowing that he would be a good target down on the pond trail for Rawlson up on the ridge.

At an open space Follansbee stopped and studied the shore across the narrow pond, affording a splendid target.

Gun Explodes

There was no doubt but what the detective, posing as a maid, had been right. Rawlson saw Follansbee resting his rifle over a stump, took deliberate aim, between Follansbee's shoulders and twitched the trigger. There was a report, unusually loud.

After that, dead silence.

Luke Follansbee walked on down the trail to the falls. After a couple hours' waiting he went to the camp.

"I'm afraid Rawlson is lost," he said. "I heard him shoot once and that is all."

It was all very sad.

Of course the chemist in St. Louis who sold Follansbee the terrific explosive didn't know his name. It is doubtful if he even read about the death of Rawlson from an exploding gun.

And as Follansbee had loaded a cartridge with the explosive in his hotel room in St. Louis, and slipped that cartridge in Rawlson's rifle in camp that morning, who was to know?

When Luke came back he said to his wife, "Queer that the cartridge intended to kill me should have killed him, isn't it, Flora? Suppose you go to Reno, now."

She went.

It is estimated that American working men spend $500,000 weekly to witness pugilistic encounters.

What a needless waste when you consider that anybody can step into a drug store, sit on a stool, and observe the soda jerkers fighting almost any time.

These white-coated boys seem very pugnacious with each other. It probably comes from eating so many chocolate eclairs.

Ultra-modern music has suddenly been lifted to new depths of introspection by Composer Broccoli Doakes, who announces that his new symphony will include long passages of coughing and sneezing, which will be rendered by members of the audience under the baton. BULLETIN

(Interview.)

"I want nothing save to leave the city a little better than I found it. That's all I want to live on the rest of my life."—Mayor Jimmy Walker.

HORSE SENSE PLAN FOR ABOLISHMENT OF LEAN TIMES!

"We have a surplus of wheat. Right?

"We have a surplus of unemployment. Right.

"Now my idea is to feed the surplus wheat to the mice. The mice will multiply under such advantageous living conditions. We can then put the unemployed to work setting mouse traps.

"Furthermore," says Mr. Frisby, after pausing for applause, "my program will increase the demand for cheese to bait the mouse traps. And the increased demand for cheese will take care of the surplus of song writers who are stranded in Hollywood."

"Now," says Congressman Frisby, as soon as he can drink another glass of ice water, "we reach the point, in progressive logic, where the song writers are properous, due to the demand for cheese. Prosperous song writers will be able to buy more berets. Demand for berets revives the woolen textile industry. Farmers will get top prices for sheep. This means lamb chops will be out of reach of the masses, thus forcing them to abandon diet fads. Consequently everybody will get fat, which puts an end to all this talk about lean times."

(Note—Mr. Frisby's analysis will be published in tracts, 100 for 25 cents, suitable for shaving paper. Add 10 cents for scalloped edged tracts to be used on pantry shelves.)

The Subway Delay

Let the Bond Authorization Be Rescinded If Pittsburgh Railways Company Will Not Operate Tube.

Without saying so in so many words the City Transit Commission left the impression in its report to Council on the subway that the delay in constructing it is due to the Pittsburgh Railways Company's failure to agree to a proposal for operation of the tube.

In 1919 the people authorized a bond issue of $6,000,000 for the construction of a subway in the First and Second Wards. The purpose was to relieve congestion on the downtown streets.

The need for traffic relief is far greater now than it was then. But, as the Transit Commission says, it would be foolish to build the subway until arrangements have been made for its operation.

The only concern, of course, that can be considered in this connection is the Pittsburgh Railways Company. It has been proposed that it be allowed to operate its cars in the subway for a rental equal to the amount it would save, through elimination of delays and otherwise, by taking the cars off the streets.

But the railways company has shown no eagerness to use the subway.

If the company continues to do nothing, it might be just as well to rescind the bond authorization and thereby increase the city's borrowing power.

Licensing Crime

District Attorney Park Is to Be Commended for Challenging Magistrates' Usurpation of Authority.

District Attorney Park deserves credit for arranging to lay before the grand jury a whisky case in which Magistrate Leo Rothenberg had dismissed the defendant with a fine.

City magistrates have no authority to assume jurisdiction in cases involving violation of the liquor, gambling and morality statutes. They are required under the law, if a prima facie case is made out, to bind over the defendants, when such charges are made, for the grand jury.

Magistrates habitually ignore the law and usurp authority. The practice is to make the charge "disorderly conduct," "keeping a disorderly house," "suspicious person," or something of the sort, and either discharge the accused or let them off with a fine.

It amounts to the licensing of vice.

The case that has roused District Attorney Park to action was rather flagrant, but no different in principle from the innumerable other bootlegging, lottery, slot machine and commercial vice cases in which the magistrates have usurped jurisdiction.

Why they have been permitted to get away with it so long is for Park to say.

A Great Issue at Stake

Federal Government's Control Over Water Power Is Challenged In Clarion River Case.

Whether or not the federal government has the right to control the use of the rivers for water power purposes, as it does for navigation, may be determined by the suit of the Clarion River Power Company of Johnstown, which came up in Washington yesterday. That is the explanation for Gifford Pinchot's excitement over the matter, for the Commonwealth's intervention in the case, and for the great array of brilliant attorneys that have been employed.

President Hoover's attorney general indicated not long ago that he doubted the constitutionality of the Federal Water Power Act of 1920. It was this opinion that led the Power Trust to challenge the right of the Federal Power Commission to reduce the sum with which the Clarion River Company was to be credited as the amount of its investment. The company claimed it had invested $11,032,816, but the commission has sought to reduce the amount to $6,387,731, saying the company had received only $31 a share for stock which it said represented an investment of $100, and also charged to investment in its plant money spent for entertainment.

Much is at stake in the determination of the issue, since the rates which power companies are allowed to charge hinge on the amount of their investment.

Pennsy's River Terminal

Railroad Evidently Expects Water Traffic to Reach Large Proportions.

Following the example of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad, which has announced plans for a rail-river terminal at Monaca, the directors of the Pennsylvania have voted to construct a rail-river terminal at Conway, at a cost of $350,000. The terminals will have facilities for transferring freight from barges to cars and vice versa.

The plans evidence expectation on the part of the railroads that river traffic will reach large proportions.

It would not be surprising if the Pennsylvania, which has already gone into the bus business and also into aviation on an extensive scale, would also operate barge lines.

Since large concerns like the Carnegie Steel Company, Jones and Laughlin and the Pittsburgh Coal Company have their own terminals, the railroads evidently plan to serve small shippers.

Their expectation of public demand for such service confirms the wisdom of the city's terminal projects.

On the other hand, it raises this question: With the railroads preparing to provide these facilities, is it necessary or desirable that the city should provide additional service?

No Uncovered Beats

Mayor Kline Is Forehanded In Calling for Patrolling of Residential Sections.

Remarking that lawlessness is often a by-product of industrial depression, Mayor Kline has recommended to Director Clark, of the Department of Public Safety, that every police beat in the city be patrolled during the winter months.

This will involve employing a number of additional policemen, to be taken from the substitute list; but the plan probably will be worth all that it costs.

The Mayor's idea is to hire the extra men for four months and have them patrol residential districts at present uncovered during the night.

The plan may result in the prevention of holdups, burglaries and murders that, but for this protection, might occur. Certainly it will add to the citizens' sense of security, which is in itself worth while.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Why Didn't He Tell Us

Senator-elect J. Ham Lewis cannot be called a political gentleman.

The Senator beat a lady to a seat.

J. Ham does not hold any original views on drinking.

But he does hold original slants on drink.

He is the author of section two of the Eighteenth Amendment.

That section was put in there in case of a tie.

Under section two he claims the states have, and always have had, the right to define the alcoholic content of beverages.

State Legislatures can decide which drinks are intoxicating. In these tests they can volunteer to be the Guinea piggies.

It seems that a State Legislature is too noble a body to be offered up to science.

Prohibition is now a decade old and we're the decayed.

Senator-elect Lewis certainly waited a long time to tell us the good news. We thought the only rights we held under the Eighteenth Amendment was to dust ourselves off after each violation.

It seems that we could have done anything we wanted under section two. We did it anyway.

Looking over section two we do find that it is rather liberal. It is the rubber in the heel. But it is not exactly a bartender's guide.

It doesn't tell you how to mix 'em. It gives the Legislatures the right of eminent domain over alcohol, liquid dynamite and corrosive sublimate of bath-tub gin.

But, when a man is in a hurry for a headache powder, he can't stop long enough to be elected to the State Legislature.

We do not know whether our State Legislatures have been practicing the power of attorney over alcoholic contents, or whether they have not.

But from some of the funny laws they have passed this season, we will say that it looks as if they have.

And, even though Senator-elect J. Ham Lewis has opened up a new avenue of thought, we will still continue to have more fun on the thoughtless detours.

POLAR EXPLORATION

By Archibald Henderson

A popular impression, which unfortunately, is highly erroneous, rules that man has conquered all the elements, and consequently has no more worlds to conquer. There are vast areas on the earth's surface, whether of water or of land, which have been "discovered," but which are as far from being conquered as ever. We know comparatively little of the Arctic, and even much less of the Antarctic in spite of the attainment of the poles by Peary and Byrd, and Amundsen and Scott.

There are great reaches along the upper reaches of the Amazon and the Orinoco which still are unknown territory to civilized man. As Bowman has recently pointed out, the "empty quarter" of Arabia, lying almost within sight of the oldest routes of migration and trade in the world, measures 500 miles by 800 miles. Think of it—almost a half million square miles of territory unknown to science, mysterious to man. It has been estimated that there still remain on the earth's surface unexplored lands of a total area at least twice that of the United States!

There is still, then, an outer margin and groups of unknown areas which remain untraversed and unconquered by man; and indeed unknown to man, except as colored patches upon an office globe.

Man still feels an irresistible urge to press on to the frontier line, the outer margin of discovered territory. The adventurous still desire irrespressibly to traverse the unknown areas and pluck out the heart of their mystery.

It is a singular fact that although the astronomers, with their enormous fact finders, the telescopes, and their small material analysts, the spectroscopes, plumb the vast recesses of outer space, there still remain near at hand vast areas which challenge mankind's exploratory instinct. Says Dr. Isaiah Bowman in Polar Exploration:

"We still live in the age of discovery, at whose threshold stood Herodotus and Prince Henry the Navigator and Eric the Red and Columbus. Indeed, if the men who made the age of discovery were to compare their lot with those of today they would vigorously assert that we, not they, live full within that age, for they would see an airplane flying upside down, human voices talking across ten thousand miles of space, an airship hitchhiking on the tail of a storm (e. g., Eckener between the Sea of Okhotsk and Tokio in his flight of August, 1929.)

However old the world may seem when judged by the record of the rocks, it is in an intellectual and exploratory sense tremendously new—it is indeed as new as its newest idea!

For the meteorologist, countless new discoveries are sure to reward his patient and indefatigable efforts. There are the two great Greenland expeditions studying conditions which remain a mystery to science.

There is the Wilkins submarine expedition in the Arctic, promising wonderful results in three domains—sea surface, sub-surface and air.

Consider, for example, the ice drift which follows unknown laws, and exercises immense but as yet incalculable meteorological effects. The volume of ice drift from Arctic and Antarctic, combined, into navigable water represents a column of ice with a base of almost a million and a half square feet, and reaching out into space as far as the moon!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I've never regretted the pain I've caused myself as I've gone along, but it's lasting misery to think of the hurt I've given others.

The pain I gave myself, I had coming to me and I know it. Sometimes it was a pretty stiff jolt, but I wished it on myself. I knew it would come, but the thing I wanted to do seemed worth the price. It wasn't always worth the price, but I had sincerely thought it would be. So I tried not to whimper when pay-day came around. But the pain I've caused others—that's different. I've never been able to consider that so philosophically. Whenever I think of it, I go sick with pity and hate myself for my cruelty. If I had my life to live over again I suspect I'd make just as many experiments and take just as much punishment for the sake of doing so. But I'd try—how hard I'd try—not to hurt others so much!

AND YET HOW FAR COULD I GO . . . HOW FAR CAN ANY OF US GO . . . WITHOUT HURTING OTHERS? AND HOW MUCH CAN WE LIVE . . . HOW MUCH OF OUR DEEPEST DUTY TO OURSELVES CAN WE PERFORM . . . IF WE ALLOW OURSELVES TO BE GOVERNED BY THE FEELINGS OF OTHERS?

It's normal to hate to give pain. We'd be brutes if we didn't. And, on the face of it, that seems a beautiful virtue. But when we pass up life for fear of giving pain—IS THAT A VIRTUE? OR DOES SUCH SACRIFICE AND CONSIDERATION BECOME A VICE?

There's an old saying—"It's all right to do a thing if it doesn't hurt anyone else." But that's absurd! You're bound to hurt someone else, no matter how you live. Whether you live meekly or rambunctiously, somebody's notions are sure to be tramped on, somebody's feelings are sure to be ruffled. And the more strongly and recklessly you live, FOR THE SAKE OF YOUR OWN DEVELOPMENT, the more pain you're going to cause. Every experiment you make, every risk you run, every rebellion you stage, will hurt someone. And you MUST do these things if you would really live. GROWING LIFE ALWAYS RAISES CAIN. Even a cabbage can't grow without heaving up things around it.

JUST HOW MUCH RIGHT HAVE YOU TO HEAVE?

HOW FAR SHOULD YOU CONSIDER THE OTHER FELLOW'S FEELINGS?

HOW RESPONSIBLE ARE YOU FOR THOSE FEELINGS?

Not all feelings are noble. Often feelings—even the feelings of those we love most—are nothing more or less than vicious gratification. Some people indulge in sensitiveness as others indulge in booze. Some people refuse to progress themselves because they are too lazy, cowardly, stubborn or sentimental and, if permitted, they will block the progress of others by these same qualities. Should you allow them to block YOUR progress? Or should you stride ahead, regardless of their feelings?

IF YOU DO, YOU'LL BE SORRY ALL YOUR LIFE—BUT IF YOU DON'T, YOU MAY BE STILL SORRIER! Well . . . what's YOUR answer?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Sea

I dreamed I saw the sea through nets of stars
As I looked down from some tremendous height,
And mingled with the harps' celestial bars,
I heard the vast sea singing through the night,
Beyond the universe's utmost rim
I watched the whirling suns in pagentry,
While through the choiring of the cherubim
I listened for the murmur of the sea.

Around me stretched the limitless array,
Like deathless flowers in some great garden plot,
Supernal joys that would not pass away;
Yet all this bliss I dreamed that forgot.
My loosened soul went circling on through space,

Text For Today

The Surprised River Jordan

The Whole of Palestine Is Being Made Over.

NEW CONCRETE LINED BED FOR THE JORDAN RIVER.

The old inhabitants of Palestine that went down to the edge of the Jordan to bathe, drink, or pray, would hardly know the river now. This picture shows the river bed, the water temporarily diverted in another direction, being lined with cement.

The waters of Jordan are to be dammed up, their power used to produce electricity which will light all of modern Palestine.

A great dam and power house are under construction, almost completed. Soon the river that rolled idly by will be put to work, creating power for factories, and light for cities and towns and highways.

The Arabs that have held Jerusalem and Palestine for 700 years look on in amazement while modern Jews, from other countries, co-operating with British and American capitalists and engineers, transform the old country into a "Jewish homeland," with wonders of which even the prophets never dreamed.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—No hotel in the metropolis to date is as steep architecturally or in tariff as the new Pierre's. It shoots up 40 floors, an immaculate thin white spire. One may acquire modest suites there from $105 to $350 daily. But there are a few single rooms, too, at $8 per diem.

Pierre, the typical bowing continental hotel keeper, came from Monte Carlo regions where hotel de luxing is a finished art. He was apparently given a hefty wad and told to let himself go in an inn that would do the village proud. It is situated on the site of the old Gary mansion, 5th avenue at 61st.

For years Pierre has conducted a sedately smart restaurant in the apartment house at 290 Park. Pierre has long dreamed of conducting the most magnificent hotel in the world. When it has achieved the success he hopes, he is to retire to France, where he started as a cafe chasseur. So the saga goes.

The new Pierre's thus becomes a sort of monument to the personal genius of a cafe keeper. Already it shows signs of handling luxury with restraint so agreeably stressed by the original Ritz-Carlton chain. The scheme of decor is chiefly Georgian as is the design of the building. Clerks are in cutaways.

Here and there are touches of 18th century English in the furniture along with the modernistic. Tenants on long leases are permitted to select their own decorations from a large supply on hand in the hotel's ware room. The register has already been inscribed by hand-picked swells.

Pierre has achieved the softness of a fireside en famille in a monster hotel. Patrons find a batch of the latest novels at their bedside from time to time. There are especially uniformed buttons to air pedigreed kiyoodles and 15 minutes after registering the entire staff knows you by name.

A breakfast room in all glass overlooks the park on the fortieth floor. The most expensive suite has an expansive terrace. The grill is designed obviously to catch the eye. The ceiling is vivid blue and a huge open glowing broiler at the far end provides a striking effect.

From row G in the Music Box Theater:

He: "I have been reading McFee's 'North of Suez.'"

She: "I read it many years ago."

And a drama stuffed with sophistication offers this treasured line: "Divorce is the fad of rich puritans."

Bide Dudley dropped into a Hawaiian cafe the other evening and among the diners saw a Japanese girl and a Scotchman in kilts. To add a quaint cosmopolitan touch he ordered frankfurters and sauer kraut and was just as quaintly served them.

In my gastronomic galavanting I have visited three Hawaiian cafes and in each asked for poi. I don't know exactly what poi is but it is always mentioned in tales of native life in Hawaii—a sort of national dish. So far it has not been procurable. Maybe it's a gag. If it is it hurts Hawaii more than me.

Experience with my own dogs is convincing enough they have no need for engraved calling cards. People they visit generally know they have been there without such hoity-toity reminders.

Most stage comedies this season—save Frank Craven's—have proven a terrific strain for the brightly sophisticated mot. Sometimes an entire act creaks obviously along to achieve a studied smart line. And it is possible that among other things wrong with the legitimate stage is a surfeit of sophisticaton. I wonder! But am not wearing myself out at it!

The only American author so far to include a monocle among his permanent adornments is Louis Joseph Vance, and he sports it with the fixedness of a portside window of the Aquitania. But my choice for the most expert of the monoclists is the American duplicate of E. Phillips Oppenheim, Jules Bache, the banker. There, men, is a master!

"This morning," postcards D. G. F. from Constantinople, "I got out of one of the most expensive hotels on this side without bestowing a single tip."

Hurry home. America needs you!

Isn't It So?

Over half of the criticism turns out to be jealousy.

When ignorance is bliss it's folly to ask questions.

Being sick is twice as depressing if your ailment has an ugly name.

If a woman really loves a man he can make her do anything she wants to do.

The pessimist's only idea of happiness is not to be as miserable as he was yesterday.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Do you need prodding or censure now and then to keep up on your toes in any effort in which you are engaged?

Are you too easy with yourself—have you too great a desire to rest on the thought of past successes and too little ambition to establish a new record?

Your past accomplishments are nothing now, but what you can and will do in the future is all important.

It is fine to have a good record, but don't stop there.

Your past achievements are only promises that you will keep somewhere near or above that same goal.

Perhaps age has so sapped your mental and physical powers you cannot keep up to your record, but that is no reason for giving up entirely.

Pick yourself to pieces as you do others in a similar situation.

Urge yourself to greater effort, not by fits and starts, but steadily and fairly to yourself and your employer.

If you don't want a serious meeting some day with the one to whom you are responsible for your production, brace up and apply yourself to your daily duties.
